HOPE TO FIND MORE DETAILS IN CRIME CASE

Expect Arrival of Brother of Man Murdered In Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 27.—Mrs. Mabel C. Champion, charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Thomas A. O'Connell, of Heywood, Conn., who was killed following a quarrel in a Euclid Avenue restaurant yesterday morning was arraigned this morning in municipal court before Judge Charles A. Selzer. She was not represented by counsel.

She asked for a continuance until August 1, in which to engage either local or out of town counsel, and for permission to confer with her husband, who is held as a material witness. Both requests were granted. Mrs. Champion was cool throughout and answered all questions concisely.

Police are seeking a man who is alleged to have overheard Champion say, "get him, Mabel," and if this witness can be found, it was said that a charge of murder will also be placed against him.

Cleveland, July 27.—With the arrival of George O'Connell, of Connell, a brother, from New Haven, Conn., today police expect to establish some of the hidden details in Cleveland restaurant murder, when Thomas A. O'Connell, of New Haven, former Yale man, and operator of a carnival concessions, was killed. Mrs. Mabel C. Champion, alias Mrs. Mabel Barnett, alias Inez Parker, alias "Teddy" O'Brien and said to be wanted by police in a dozen cities on various charges, is held on a charge of murder, while her husband, A. F. Champion, is held as a material witness.

The woman, young and pretty still, denies that she killed O'Connell. Her husband, who until late last night night denied that the woman was his wife, says that he knows nothing of the crime and that he was so much under the influence of liquor that he cannot give a clear story of the morning's happenings.

Captain of Detectives George Matowitz, today will seek to establish these things:

- 1—The real name of the man slain. It had variously given as Connell, O'Connell and Connolly.
- 2—Whether the murder was the result of an accidental quarrel or any previous acquaintance had existed.
- 3—The antecedents of Mr. and Mrs. Champion.

Mrs. Champion on all details of her life maintains silence. On the other hand, Champion who had proven an evasive and unsatisfactory witness, finally admitted many facts he had heretofore denied, among the most important being that their home was in Dallas, Texas and that lately he had been making his living playing cards, police say. He denied any acquaintance with O'Connell. This morning for the first time, he admitted that the gun with which O'Connell was killed was his. The police theory is that Mrs. Champion fired the three shots that killed the New Englander.

Meanwhile, at the home of a Cleveland friend, the widow of the slain man is near prostration. "Tom was everybody's friend," she sobs. "His only enemy was drink. He had been spending the summer at Geneva-on-the-Lake, and I came in for a day or so to see friends here. Tom came to see me Tuesday, and I was going to cancel my engagements and spend the day with him, but he would not have it. I don't see how any one could kill him."

ASYLUM INMATE GIVES UP, FINALLY

Charleston, W. Va., July 27.—After having withstood a twelve day siege, while barricaded in his home at Hinton, during which period he killed one man and wounded four others, including his father, Jonn Fredeking, paroled some time ago from a state insane asylum, surrendered early this morning to state police, according to reports received here.

An earlier capture was prevented by the refusal of a justice of the peace to issue a warrant charging him with felony and a warning by the court that any one killing him would be charged with murder.

Fredeking appeared at the door this morning and asked for a drink of water. Two state police, after quenching his thirst, led him away to jail, where physicians attended him. He is reported to be wounded in both arms.

POLICE HOLD TWO IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER OF "TURKEY KING"

Leon Renaker, 37, Wealthy Produce Merchant, Slain In Home in Winchester—Beneve Crime Was Committed Monday Night.

Cincinnati, July 27.—Clayton Lewis, 30, Elora City, Tenn., and E. J. Larivision, 40, of Winchester, Ky., were taken from a freight train at Ralmona Ky. last night and held on suspicion in connection with the murder of Leon Renaker, 37, wealthy produce merchant known as the "turkey king of the world," which occurred at his home in Winchester. Renaker's body was discovered in his bedroom at noon yesterday by his wife when she returned to Winchester after visiting relatives of Covington, Ky. The two men held at Ralmona were arrested after the police of Winchester had broadcasted a request to the neighboring Kentucky towns to watch out for two men thought to have fled from Winchester.

Renaker was last seen alive on Monday just before midnight by friends in Winchester who saw him turn up the street toward his home. He is thought to have been murdered shortly after preparing for bed and while he was still sitting up reading a newspaper. The left side of his skull had been caved in by a heavy blow and the bed clothing was disarranged as if a struggle had taken place. The murderer wiped his hands on the curtains in the room and also left a bloody hand print on a screen door as he went out. The slain man's clothes were left undisturbed and money and jewelry in the room were not touched. Before Renaker's body was found his mother received a telephone call at Cynthiana, Ky., purporting to come from a man in Covington, and telling her that she should notify Renaker's wife (then on the train to Winchester) at Cynthiana that when she arrived home she would find her husband dead. The mother was unable to reach her daughter in law before she reached Winchester. Police have been unable to trace the mysterious message.

Columbus, July 27.—Authorization to purchase coal for state institutions in the open market has been granted by the state board of control. IRISH IRREGULARS READY TO BATTLE FREE STATE ARMY

Devalera Reported To Be
In Command of Rebel Forces.

Dublin, July 27.—Large forces of Republican irregulars are concentrating in the region of Ferny and Waterford, indicating that preparations are under way to give battle to the free state troops. Eamonn Devalera is reported to be in command of the rebels. The railways were torn up hindering the approach of free staters.

The advance of the free state troops into the south and west continues but the real situation is obscured by the censorship. It is reported that the resignation of George Gavan Duffy, as foreign minister was due to the censorship.

An amusing situation has been created by the action of the Republican court in ordering the arrest of Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense in the Irish provisional government. Mulcahy formerly was chief of staff in the Irish Republican army. He espoused the cause of Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith, turning against Devalera. The free state government does not recognize the Republican court.

The Norfolk and Western road, which was to move the circus cars from here to those cities, notified the circus management that it would be unable to furnish facilities because of the strike and fuel shortage. The Pennsylvania road agreed to move the circus tomorrow night to Washington, C. H.

The circus was to have exhibited in Chillicothe, today, Portsmouth, Friday and Ironton Saturday.

FACTORIES MAKE RUSH TO BUY COAL AFTER RULING

Cincinnati, July 27.—Factories low on the coal priority list made a rush to buy Wednesday when it was learned that the Interstate Commerce Commission's ruling did not affect fuel in transit and as a result coal which sold for $7.25 to $7.50 on Tuesday soared to $8.75 and $9 in the local market. There was also wild competition to close out on the available supply at these prices because it was feared that the price would drop below $4 as soon as the "Hoover prices" became effective. A conference of operators in the Hazard coal region is to be held today to canvass the temporary chaotic conditions and lay plans for falling in with the government's price regulations.

BRUSH FIRE IN WEST BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL

Oakland, Cal., July 27.—More than 2,000 men, assisted by fire apparatus from half a dozen bay cities after an all night fight, early today brought under control a brush fire that swept 6,000 acres at the base of Mount Diablo and for hours threatened the towns of Concord, Clayton and Danby. Several hundred cattle are believed to have perished in the fire swept area. The glow of the flames was visible for twenty miles and at one time the fire line as 15 miles wide.

BAVARIAN CRISIS WILL BE AVERTED GERMANY BELIEVES

Secession Menace Is Now
Thought to Have Been Overcome.

Berlin, July 27.—Government officials expressed the opinion today that the Bavarian crisis which has been threatening Germany with civil war and a break up of the confederation of states will be averted. It was expected that the government warning to Bavaria against secession would be followed by a statement to the Bavarians to keep the peace.

There was a strong current of opinion that the reichstag would not be summoned to deal with the situation as officials believed that the tension could be allayed best if the negotiations were conducted quietly between Berlin and Munich.

Independent socialists are most hostile against Bavaria, claiming that the southern monarchists are only awaiting an opportunity to attempt to overthrow the central government.

He stated that the movement of the Cleveland soldiers is part of the state government's program for assigning Ohio national guardsmen to strategic points in the coal mining regions in easy access of places

HARDING TAKES COMMAND OF RAILWAY SITUATION

President Hopes, Through Personal Intervention to Achieve Resumption of Service Pending
Permanent Settlement.

Washington, July 27.—Definite progress toward establishing a truce in the national railroad strike that is slowly strangling industry and commerce was made here today in a series of White House conferences which brought before President Harding all the parties directly concerned in the controversy.

In the face of White House silence as to the actual steps taken, or proposals made, the most significant development was the announcement by T. Dewitt Cuyler, president of the Association of Railway executives that he and certain other executives will remain in Washington for a week or so. The announcement followed an hour's conference between Cuyler and the president this morning.

Even more significant was the announcement that Cuyler would return to the White House for another session with the chief executive tonight, the president in the meantime having a conference with B. M. Jewell, strike director and the leaders of the six federated shopcrafts concerned in the tie up.

Washington, July 27.—Peace moves in the paralyzing railway strike were in progress today with President Harding at the throttle, becoming weary of the inaction and apparent inactivity of the railroad managers of the strikers to find a common ground for adjustment of their differences, as was as marked by the increased possibility of the tie up the president's own words. Through personal intervention, he hopes to achieve what all other agencies, including the railroad labor board has failed to accomplish—resumption of service pending permanent settlement of differences.

The spokesmen for both sides were due at the White House today—for the railway managers, T. Dewitt Cuyler, president of the American Association of Railway executives and considered the spokesmen for the big eastern roads which have so far refused to make any concession in the issue of seniority rights; the strikers, B. M. Jewell, the major dome of the walkout.

Cuyler went into conference with President Harding at the White House about the same time that the national railroad strike that is slowly strangling industry and commerce was made here today in a series of White House conferences which brought before President Harding all the parties directly concerned in the controversy.

What amounted to an appeal to both sides to "listen to reason" and permit a resumption of operations pending opportunity for a more deliberate settlement under cooler conditions, was contained in President Harding's telegram of rebuke to J. Van Cleave Dean, chairman of the Railway Employees' Publicity association at Chattanooga.

In order to accomplish this "return to reason," President Harding must first prevail upon the "hard core" element among the railroad executives to allow the strikers to return to work with their seniority and other rights unimpaired.

It is understood this will form the chief subject to be discussed by the president with Cuyler, today.

Accompanying Jewell to Washington were Timothy Leary, head of the oulers and firemen, and A. O. Warrington, a labor member of the railway labor board.

Upon the result of these conferences, and others to be held this week, hinges the possibility of a truce in the railway crisis before the week is out, according to the belief prevailing today in government quarters. And peace in the railway strike, it is believed would be a forerunner to renewed efforts to make peace in the equally serious coal strike.

While the White House was silent today on the president's renewed efforts in the situation, it was believed Mr. Harding "summoned" the opposing sides to Washington to make a proposition to them along the following lines:

1—The executives to recede from their stubborn position on seniority rights and temporarily to permit the strikers to return to work on their old status, pending a permanent settlement of the question under more stable conditions.

2—The strikers to return to work, also on a temporary basis, pending a rehearing of their grievances by the railroad labor board.

Motor Power Deteriorates
Washington, July 27.—The motive power of the railroads is deteriorating at the rate of nine thousand locomotives a week ordered out of commission for want of repairs, it was learned from government figures today.

Determining to battle against these odds, railroad chiefs it was stated in a reliable government quarters today, are prevailing upon the major locomotive construction plants to take over the work of overhauling "sick" locomotives ahead of work on hand.

Hundreds of locomotives, it was stated, are being sent daily to the building plants of the Baldwin Locomotive Works at Philadelphia; the American Locomotive Company with plants at Richmond, Va., and Schenectady, N. Y., the Lima Locomotive Company at Lima, Ohio, and numerous smaller concerns throughout the country and in some sections to shipbuilding plants equipped to handle locomotive repair work.

CONFERENCE MAY LEAD TO SETTLEMENT

Pottsville, Pa., July 27.—Important developments leading to the possible settlement of the anthracite coal strike are occurring in the conference of the mayors of the anthracite region cities. Mayor Bearstetter of this city, said today that representatives of the miners have agreed that the diggers shall return to work at the present wage scale instead of pressing the demands for a 20 percent increase, which means a concession of $50,000,000 a year.

They also have agreed not to press the demands of a change in working hours, which makes a further concession from their previous demands of $70,000,000 per year.

CARS BOMBARDED BY STRIKING MEN

Buffalo, July 27.—With windows broken and bodies dented the night cars operated by the International Railway company were run into the barns this morning after having undergone an apparently systematic bombardment by striking employees and sympathizers. Scarcely a car escaped unscathed.

One arrest was made. A policeman riding in a street car fired four shots at a youth who is alleged to have stoned the trolley and subsequently arrested the youth. Besides stones, billiard balls and bottles, were employed by strike sympathizers to express their resentment against the company's plan to operate cars at night.

On one light, police fought 10 men, women and children who had armed themselves with bottles and stones, ready to assail passing trolleys.

Efforts To Form Cabinet In Italy Fail Thursday

Political Situation Grows More Tense With Rumors of Possible Military Dictatorship Reported
From Rome.

Rome, July 27.—Efforts of Deputy Meda to form a new cabinet in succession to the Facta ministry ended in failure today. In the meantime the political situation grows more tense with rumors of a possible military dictatorship. It was expected that King Victor Emmanuel would invite Signor Donava to attempt the formation of a new ministry and in the event of his failure would call upon Signor Orlando or Signor Dedicola.

The government position is insecure and the outcome cannot be foreseen.

Practically all the leading statesmen have admitted their inability to form a new government.

Public tension has arisen to fever pitch over the warfare between the fascisti and the communists and socialists in the north. Both sides have armed and are prepared for a spread of the conflict.

According to the shopmen, 95 percent of the men at Rutherford are on strike. Officials of the railroad refused to confirm the walkout here.

HOPELESSLY DEADLOCKED

Cincinnati, July 27.—William C. Liller, conciliator of the United States department of labor, today addressed a communication to striking shoe workers in Cincinnati and to their former employers saying that he found them to be hopelessly deadlocked over the current strike situation and asked that they arrange for a joint conference. He said that until both sides showed themselves willing to make overtures in the matter of a settlement there was little chance of bettering the situation which has tied up the shoe industry here for ten weeks.

MORE SHOPMEN STRIKE AGAINST ADDED WORK

MAINTAIN SILENCE OVER CONFERENCE ON COAL WALKOUT

Miners Refuse to Back
Up On Stand They Have Taken.

Philadelphia, July 27.—Absolute silence as to the nature of topics under discussion in the conference between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and District leaders of the anthracite and bituminous regions in this state has been maintained so far by all concerned. Outstanding in the undercurrent of informal talk, however, is the fact that the miners will not go back on from their stand taken on April 1, when they walked out.

According to John Hessler, president of the state of Indiana district, one outcome of the present conference will be another call for a conference between miners and operators. Ohio operators and a majority of those in Pennsylvania would be glad to attend such a meeting, Mr. Hessler said for as it stands now, the miners have virtually won the strike.

Today the conference between Lewis and his Pennsylvania leaders continues. It was indicated by him early today that possible some developments would be made public.

A feature of the conference which is held in Mr. Lewis' rooms at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel is the presence of secret service agents in the corridor, who carefully note all persons entering and leaving.

A conference of operators in the Hazard coal region is to be held today to canvass the temporary chaotic conditions and lay plans for falling in with the government's price regulations.

BRUSH FIRE IN WEST BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL

Oakland, Cal., July 27.—More than 2,000 men, assisted by fire apparatus from half a dozen bay cities after an all night fight, early today brought under control a brush fire that swept 6,000 acres at the base of Mount Diablo and for hours threatened the towns of Concord, Clayton and Danville. Several hundred cattle are believed to have perished in the fire swept area. The glow of the flames was visible for twenty miles and at one time the fire line as 15 miles wide.

BAVARIAN CRISIS WILL BE Averted GERMANY BELIEVES

Secession Menace Is Now
Thought to Have Been Overcome.

Berlin, July 27.—Government officials expressed the opinion today that the Bavarian crisis which has been threatening Germany with civil war and a break up of the confederation of states will be averted. It was expected that the government warning to Bavaria against secession would be followed by a statement to the Bavarians to keep the peace.

There was a strong current of opinion that the reichstag would not be summoned to deal with the situation as officials believed that the tension could be allayed best if the negotiations were conducted quietly between Berlin and Munich.

Independent socialists are most hostile against Bavaria, claiming that the southern monarchists are only awaiting an opportunity to attempt to overthrow the central government.

TROOPS ARE SENT TO BELMONT COUNTY FOR AN EMERGENCY

Adjutant General Florence Announces That Move Is Part of State Government's Program of Assigning Soldiers to Strategic Points.

Columbus, July 27.—Announcement that troop A, Cleveland, Ohio, National Guard, has been ordered to entrain immediately for Belmont County was made here at noon today by Adjutant General Florence.

The name of the road over which the militiamen will travel was not made public. The adjutant general said he left to the railroad officials the selection of the troops point of destination.

He stated that the movement of the Cleveland soldiers is part of the state government's program for assigning Ohio national guardsmen to strategic points in the coal mining regions in easy access of places

HARDING TAKES COMMAND OF RAILWAY SITUATION

President Hopes, Through Personal Intervention to Achieve Resumption of Service Pending
Permanent Settlement.

Washington, July 27.—Definite progress toward establishing a truce in the national railroad strike that is slowly strangling industry and commerce was made here today in a series of White House conferences which brought before President Harding all the parties directly concerned in the controversy.

In the face of white House silence as to the actual steps taken, or proposals made, the most significant development was the announcement by T. Dewitt Cuyler, president of the Association of Railway executives that he and certain other executives will remain in Washington for a week or so. The announcement followed an hour's conference between Cuyler and the president this morning.

Even more significant was the announcement that Cuyler would return to the White House for another session with the chief executive tonight, the president in the meantime having a conference with B. M. Jewell, strike director and the leaders of the six federated shopcrafts concerned in the tie up.

Washington, July 27.—Peace moves in the paralyzing railway strike were in progress today with President Harding at the throttle, wearing weary of the nation and apparent mastery of the railroad managers of the strikers to find a common ground for agreement of their differences, as well as alarmed by the increased possibility of the use of the present situation as a precedent for the secession of the southern states.

The spokesmen for both sides were due at the White House today—for the railway managers, T. Dewitt Cuyler, president of the American Association of Railway executives and considered the spokesmen for the big eastern roads which have so far refused to make any concession in the issue of seniority rights; for the strikers, B. M. Jewell, the major domo of the walkout.

Cuyler went into conference with President Harding at the White House about the same time that Jewell arrived in Washington from Chicago.

What amounted to an appeal to both sides to "listen to reason" and permit a resumption of operations pending opportunity for a more deliberate settlement under cooler conditions, was contained in President Harding's telegram of rebuke to J. Van Cleave Dean, chairman of the Railway Employees' Publicity association at Chattanooga.

In order to accomplish this "return to reason," President Harding must first prevail upon the hard core element among the railroad executives to allow the strikers to return to work with their seniority and other rights unimpaired.

It is understood this will form the chief subject to be discussed by the president with Cuyler, today.

Accompanying Jewell to Washington were railway men, head of the miners and ironmen, and A. O. Warrington a labor member of the railway labor board.

Upon the result of these conferences, and others to be held this week, hinges the possibility of a truce in the railway crisis before the week is out, according to the belief prevailing today in government quarters. And peace in the railway strike, it is believed would be a forerunner to renewed efforts to make peace in the equally serious coal strike.

While the White House was silent today on the president's renewed efforts in the situation, it was believed Mr. Harding "summoned" the opposing sides to Washington to make a proposition to them along the following lines:

1.—The executives to recede from their stubborn position on seniority rights and temporarily to permit the strikers to return to work on their old status, pending a permanent settlement of the question under more stable conditions.

2.—The strikers to return to work, also on a temporary basis, pending a rehearing of their grievances by the railroad labor board.

Motor Power Defractories

Washington, July 27.—The motive power of the railroads is deteriorating at the rate of nine thousand locomotives a week ordered out of commission for want of repairs, it was learned from government figures today.

Determining to battle against these odds, railroad chiefs it was stated in a reliable government quarters today, are prevailing upon the major locomotive construction plants to take over the work of overhauling "sick" locomotives ahead of work on hand.

Hundreds of locomotives, it was stated, are being sent daily to the building plants of the Baldwin Locomotive Works at Philadelphia; the American Locomotive Company with plants at Richmond, Va., and Schenectady, N. Y.; the Lima Locomotive Company at Lima, Ohio, and numerous smaller concerns throughout the country and in some sections to shipbuilding plants equipped to handle locomotive repair work.

CONFERENCE MAY LEAD TO SETTLEMENT

Pottsville, Pa., July 27.—Important developments leading to the possible settlement of the anthracite coal strike are occurring in the conference of the mayors of the anthracite region cities. Mayor Bearstler, of this city, said today that representatives of the miners have agreed that the diggers shall return to work at the present wage scale instead of pressing the demands for a 20 percent increase, which means a concession of $50,000,000 a year.

They also have agreed not to press the demands of a change in working hours, which makes a further concession from their previous demands of $70,000,000 per year.

CARS BOMBARDED BY STRIKING MEN

Buffalo, July 27.—With windows broken and bodies dented the night cars operated by the International Railway company were run into the barns this morning after having undergone an apparently systematic bombardment by striking employees and sympathizers. Scarcely a car escaped unscathed.

One arrest was made. A policeman riding in a street car fired four shots at a youth who is alleged to have stoned the trolley and subsequently arrested the youth. Besides stones, billiard balls and bottles were employed by strike sympathizers to express their resentment against the company's plan to operate cars at night.

On one light police fought 10 men, women and children who had armed themselves with bottles and stones, ready to assail passing trolleys.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT YELLOW SPRINGS WEDNESDAY TRIBUTE TO DR. S. D. FESS SENATE CANDIDATE

The pre-primary rally to boost the candidacy of Dr. S. D. Fess for the U. S. Senate, held on the Antioch College campus Wednesday afternoon was a distinct tribute to the congressman in whose honor it was arranged, and at the same time it gave other candidates the opportunity to make themselves known and to pass out their usual pre-primary hand-shakes and literature. Many of them took advantage of the concave. Dr. Fess himself beamed in the informal gathering that preceded the speeches, and each candidate had his knot of followers.

N. H. Fairbanks, of Springfield, who wants to succeed Dr. Fess as congressman in this district, was being ably supported by his two pretty daughters, who saw that every one on the campus had cards announcing his candidacy, and by his son-in-law, Dr. H. C. Messenger, of this city.

Charles Brand and his genial smile brought two automobiles full of supporters from Urbana to aid him in seeing all the voters present. The cards bearing his picture and his platform were everywhere, and in his speech he made his usual appeal to the agricultural element. C. A. Magee was not known to a great many present but he soon let them know who he was. The Blanchester candidate is both preacher and lawyer—a rare combination. He was in the midst of a declaration of his platform when his time was up and he cut off abruptly.

The tall form of Prof. E. A. Harper, head of the law school of Ohio Northern University, who is a candidate for the lieutenant governor nomination, drew all eyes. Although this is his first bid as a politician, Prof. Harper, who was also formerly a minister, looked the part in his cutaway coat and white vest. He is the father of Coach Fowler V. "Chic" Harper, who put Wilmington College on the football map last fall, and also a personal friend of Central High Coach Jerry L. Katherman, Attorney George Smith and Judge Marcus Shoup of this city.

Prof. Harper made a hit with the women present when he told them he was for anything the women wanted. He is emphatically bone dry and an advocate of economy. "My name is Harper," said the tall professor. "The harp is a musical instrument, but you can't have the music without the Harper, and you can't have music without harmony. There you have it, Mr. Blank Governor; Dr. Fess, Senator; Harper, Lieutenant Governor and Harmony."

Judge Huston T. Robins, of Chillicothe, who is a good mixer and didn't miss a prospective voter, is having the same difficulty in keeping track of his opponents for lieutenant governor as Jim Faulkner. Judge Robins solicited a vote from one of his opponents recently at a political gathering, when he failed to recognize in the man he was introduced as a fellow candidate. Later another candidate was introduced to him, and Judge Robins attempted to convince both of his opponents that they should vote for him.

Senator M. A. Broadstone, who used to be in the State Senate, and who is now seeking a second term as Representative, didn't miss an opportunity Wednesday. Outside of the Antioch Campus a number of men were digging a ditch. Mr. Broadstone arrived early at the scene in order not to miss anything and he stopped every man swinging a pick long enough to solicit his vote. His opponent, W. B. Bryson, who has previously served in the lower branch of the state legislature, was also present at the Fess gathering and brought the greetings of the County Farm Bureau, of which he is president. He said Dr. Fess is standing by the farmer and that the farmers are going to support Fess.

Candidates for local offices in Greene County were bashful. Although Senator Henry R. Endley, of Mansfield, Fess's campaign manager, called on them to come forward and be introduced, not a one of them stepped up, although practically all of the candidates running for competitive offices were present. The chairman offered them the opportunity to be introduced without speaking but they all "muffed" the opportunity.

Among local men present were Roy Marshall, chairman of the Republican committee, George Little, candidate for Central Committee, and Dr. H. C. Messenger and Paul H. Cresswell. Mrs. C. C. Stephenson, wife of the Yellow Springs postmaster, an ardent Fess follower and members of the committee in charge, put in a busy afternoon, meeting the candidates and making the visitors welcome. The committee was composed of P. M. Stewart, chairman; Mrs. Stephenson, Thomas Donley, J. N. Wolford and Joseph Curl.

Styles BY LENORE

Shantung silk is a material in which one may be cool and look charming. In model sketched it is shown with pastel green, a combination which is always fresh-looking and summery. The cut of the model is unusual. The skirt is entirely flat, the back being graduated in length and brought around to the front in a point extending several inches below other side.

where the contrasting color is admitted in an inverted, fan-shaped pleat which is visible only when the wearer walks. Green beads ornament the neck and sleeves, and a little cascade of green accents the girle. This model is an adaptation of a clever French design, and may of course be translated into other colors and materials. Black crepe, for example, with red Georgette and crystal beads. I am sure would make a splendid late summer dress which would be smart throughout the fall.

DECLARE AGAINST SETTLEMENT NOW

Washington, Pa., July 27.—Undaunted by four months idleness and in many cases in abject poverty, striking coal miners in the union fields declared against any settlement of the coal dispute until their wage demands are fully met.

Under no circumstances, government appeal or coercion to the contrary, will a ton of coal be mined by union miners in this section, leaders declare.

A thorough survey of the entire mining area of Washington, Fayette and Greene counties, heart of the soft coal region of Pennsylvania and testing of President Harding's plan for opening the mines under military protection, bears them out.

RADIO OPERATORS FORM BIG UNION IN BELGIUM

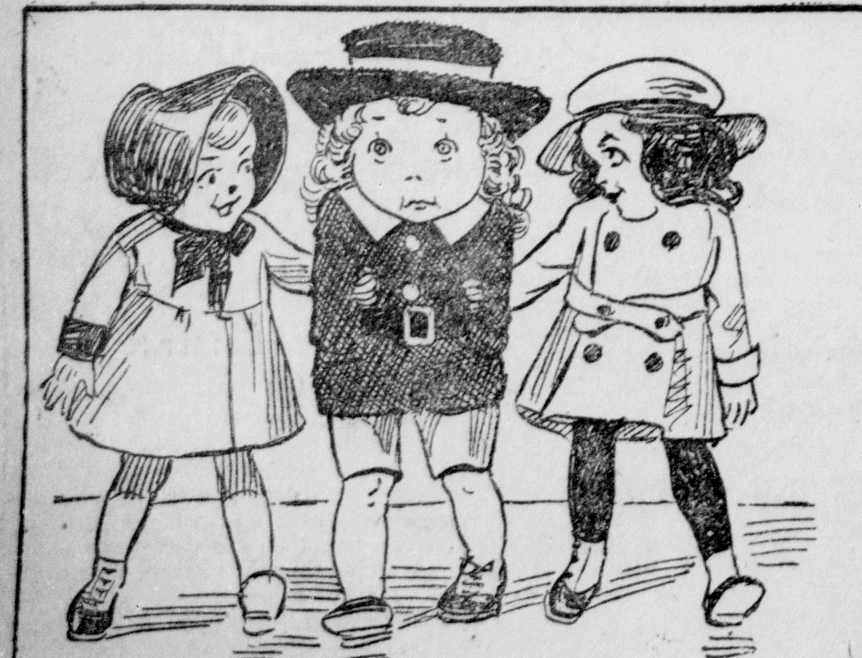

Brussels, July 27.—An international federation of radio operators has been founded here. It will have its chief office in London.

Belgian, English, Dutch, Italian and Swedish operators were present at the charter meeting. Resolutions were adopted:

1. That radio operators aboard ship be not asked to do other duties than those which directly concern radiotelegraphy.

2. That the radiotelegraphic service aboard ship be placed under direct and sole control of an authorized operator under the immediate authority of the commanding officer of the ship.

He said Dr. Fess is standing by the farmer and that the farmers are going to support Fess.

Candidates for local offices in Greene County were bashful. Although Senator Henry R. Endley, of Mansfield, Fess's campaign manager, called on them to come forward and be introduced, not a one of them stepped up, although practically all of the candidates running for competitive offices were present. The chairman offered them the opportunity to be introduced without speaking but they all "muffed" the opportunity.

Among local men present were Roy Marshall, chairman of the Republican committee, George Little, candidate for Central Committee, and Dr. H. C. Messenger and Paul H. Cresswell. Mrs. C. C. Stephenson, wife of the Yellow Springs postmaster, an ardent Fess follower and member of the committee in charge, put in a busy afternoon, meeting the candidates and making the visitors well of the ship.

The committee was composed of F. M. Stewart, chairman; Mrs. Stephenson, Thomas Donley, J. N. Wolford and Joseph Curl.

Styles BY LENORE

Shantung silk is a material in which one may be cool and look charming. In model sketched it is shown with pastel green, a combination which is always fresh-looking and summary. The cut of the model is unusual. The skirt is entirely flat, the back being graduated in length and brought around to the front in a point extending several inches below other side.

where the contrasting color is admitted in an inverted, fan-shaped pleat which is visible only when the wearer walks. Green beads ornament the neck and sleeves, and a little cascade of green accents the girdle.

This model is an adaptation of a clever French design, and may of course be translated into other colors and materials. Black crepe, for example, with red Georgette and crystal beads, I am sure would make a splendid late summer dress which would be smart throughout the fall.

DECLARE AGAINST SETTLEMENT NOW

Washington, Pa., July 27.—Undaunted by four months idleness and in many cases in abject poverty, striking coal miners in the union fields declared against any settlement of the coal dispute until their wage demands are fully met.

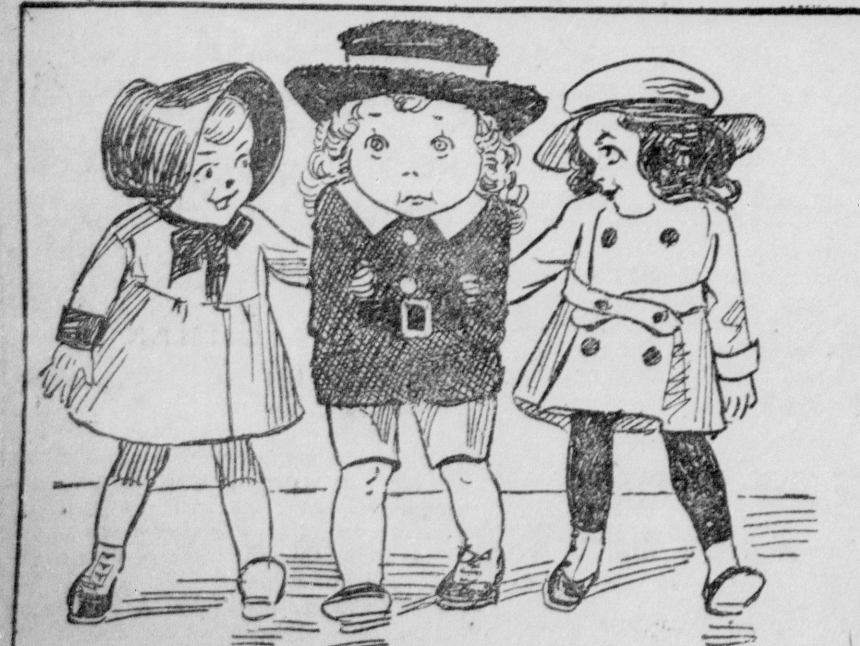

Under no circumstances, government appeal or coercion to the contrary, will a ton of coal be mined by union miners in this section, leaders declare.

A thorough survey of the entire mining area of Washington, Fayette and Greene counties, heart of the soft coal region of Pennsylvania and testing of President Harding's plan for opening the mines under military protection, bears them out.

RADIO OPERATORS FORM
BIG UNION IN BELGIUM
Brussels, July 27.—An international federation of radio operators has been founded here. It will have its chief office in London.

Belgin, English, Dutch, Italian and Swedish operators were present at the charter meeting. Resolutions were adopted:
1. That radio operators aboard ship be not asked to do other duties than those which directly concern radiotelegraphy.
2. That the radiotelegraphic service aboard ship be placed under direct and sole control of an authorized operator under the immediate authority of the commanding officer of the ship.

GUARDIAN IS APPOINTED FOR AKRON DRUNK MAN

Akron, Ohio.—A vivid reminder of pre-Volsteadian days was noted in Probate Court here a few days ago, when Judge L. D. Slusser appointed a guardian for a drunkard for the purpose of preventing him from squandering an inheritance aggregating several thousand dollars. It was stated that the inebriated man had been acquainted with a bootlegger who learned of the inheritance.

Although from now on the bootlegger will have to deal with the guardian, Probate Court officials voiced the opinion that the chances for the illicit liquor venter meeting with success are "very slim."

STATE INSPECTORS INVESTIGATE CITY IN TYPHOID PROBE

F. H. Waring, assistant engineer of the State Department of Health, arrived here Thursday morning on his regular tour of inspection.

With Dr. E. R. Shaffer, investigator of the state department, Dr. H. Grube, City Health Commissioner, City Manager S. O. Hale and City Auditor T. H. Zell, Mr. Waring began his tour of inspection Thursday morning.

The officials visited the two water pumping stations here, and were expected to inspect all cross connections in the city during the day. Dr. Shaffer came here Wednesday and remained over until Thursday continuing his investigation. No new cases of typhoid fever have been reported by officials.

The bacteria count of local milk samples taken by Dr. Grube and made at the Dayton city bacteriological laboratories was received Thursday morning, showing one sample has 70,000 bacteria and one other sample, 25,000, both being considered good and showing that the milk is pure.

Another sample taken was lost in a laboratory accident so that the count could not be made. Other samples will be taken immediately for another count.

A state veterinarian expected to arrive here Monday to assist Dr. C. A. Hoffman, local veterinarian in a dairy herd inspection, has not yet arrived. He is not here Friday, Dr. Hoffman will probably begin an inspection tour by himself.

Frank Chambliss, local bacteriologist, whose bacteria count of milk samples directed attention to the milk supplies during the early part of the epidemic is now employed as a sanitary inspection officer by the city.

DELINQUENCY IS ON INCREASE SAYS REPORT OF COURT

Kansas City Mo., Within a period of two years juvenile delinquency among girls has increased 20 per cent, according to Judge E. E. Porterfield, of the Kansas City Juvenile Court. This perceptible increase can be attributed directly to the lure of bright lights and the gay mothers of today, the Judge declared.

"For the first time in the history of this court I have observed that the girls are going back on me," Judge Porterfield explained. I am shocked. The girls of today are benefited. For some inexplicable far too independent for their own reason the majority among the youths of today—boys and girls—refuse to listen to the advice given by their elders.

"The mothers who are constantly seeking entertainments outside of the home and those who make a practice of leaving their broods to the care of a trained nurse are partially responsible for the utter disregard with which girls are treating the moral code."

Historical data has it that there was once a period when little girls "were made of sugar and spice and everything nice." But those days are pronouncedly passed now, court attendants declare.

Young girls are showing a marked tendency to learn early the ways of dangerous gayety, nightly revels away from the home and numerous unconventional things, according to a woman probation officer. A loose moral viewpoint is largely to blame, she said. The future of society is at stake, and the courts should immediately adopt strenuous methods to curb these evils, she declared.

STOLEN BICYCLES ARE NOW RECOVERED

Two bicycles, one stolen Wednesday and one taken Tuesday, were recovered Wednesday night, by police.

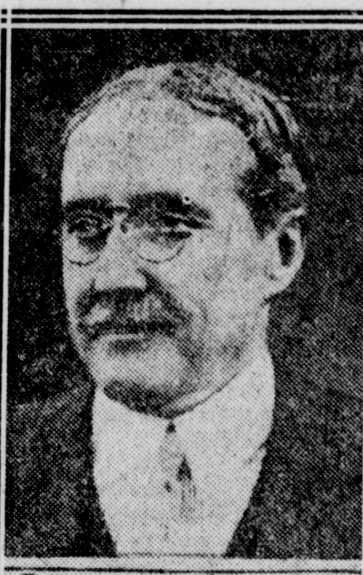

The bicycle owned by Norbert McCallister, North King Street, was discovered in possession of C. W. Bray, four and one-half miles east of Xenia off the Columbus pike, and was recovered by McCallister with Chief of Police Graham and Patrolman Jones.

The wheel is said to have been stolen by John Wesley Winslow, colored, aged nine, East Market Street, who is said to have graded it to the Bray boy for a picture machine and a kodak. A bicycle belonging to Herbert Patterson, South Detroit Street, was recovered by police in possession of John Jordan, colored, aged 12, of 4 Columbus Avenue.

Jordan said he was considering trading or buying the bicycle from the Winslow boy, and that he had it in his possession at the time for the purpose of trying it out. Both wheels were returned to their owners.

Gerard Sails for Paris

James W. Gerard

Former Ambassador to Germany James W. Gerard, accompanied by his wife and sister-in-law Countess Sigary, formerly Miss Harriett Daly, of Oklahoma, has sailed for Paris. He intimated that he might visit the Genoa Conference in all official capacity.

SHOOTING SCRAPE UNLEASHED THROUGH WORK OF NURSE

Mrs. Margaret Kelly, public health nurse with the Social Service League qualified as a woman detective Thursday morning when she unearthed a shooting scrape among youths in the east end, captured the gun with which the shooting is said to have been done and turned the information over to authorities.

As a result of the shooting Harold Aiken, 15, colored of Church and Jefferson Streets, is suffering from a bullet wound in the left groin and another in the left hand and arrangements are being made by Mrs. Kelly to take him to a Dayton hospital for an X-ray and treatment to avoid the development of gangrene.

Three colored youths suspected of implication in the shooting or of knowing something of it are Alonzo White 16, of 167 Lexington Ave., William Byrd, 13, of 130 Lexington Avenue and Arthur Jackson Sterling 12, of 29 1-2 North Street. Although the shooting is said to have taken place Wednesday afternoon no report of the affair was made to police until Mrs. Kelly had completed her investigation.

Mrs. Kelly gave the three suspected youths the third degree Thursday morning at their homes. They at first maintained that Aiken had been shot by a man who was on the opposite side of a creek from them while they were picking berries near Wilberforce Wednesday afternoon. They later admitted that their original story was not true but just as stoutly contended that they knew nothing of the shooting. Aiken alleges that he shot himself, although authorities discredit the belief that he would shoot himself accidentally twice.

The gun confiscated by Mrs. Kelly was found at the home of Alonzo White, 167 Lexington Avenue, after the boy had repeatedly said that he did not have the gun. He finally produced it. It is a rusty .32 calibre revolver, but is in good working condition. Police were notified of the affair but because of the youth of the boys, who are all minors, the case will probably be handled in juvenile court. Arrests are expected.

ISSUES WARNING AGAINST "CON" MEN

Chief of Police M. E. Graham issued a warning Thursday afternoon especially to colored people, to be on the lookout for two colored confidence men, who are attempting to work the ancient pocketbook game.

Police had a report Thursday that the men had attempted to work the old game on Jim Tom Biglow, East Third Street, but he was wise to go the ancient "con" game, and the men fled after they were unsuccessful in fleeing him.

The "con" men arrived here Thursday morning from Springfield, alighting from a traction car they were spotted by Patrolman Charles Simms, who is working temporarily as a health officer, and who attempted to keep a watch on them. When they disappeared the report came from Biglow that they had attempted to work the pocketbook game on him. Pocketbook operators have fleeced several colored people out of the money they have saved in X's in the last few years, and supposed victims are asked to call police if the game is attempted with them.

Beauty Chats

RESULTS OF THE PERMANENT WAVE

When all the complicated process of winding and baking the hair is finished, when the hair is unwound and shampooed, and trained deftly into loose, natural looking Marcel waves by the skilful hands of the attendant, when the hair has dried so these waves are temporarily set there is only one remaining thing to do—spraying the hair with a scented solution called a fixing fluid. Personally I haven't an idea as to the contents of this fluid, I have not tried to analyse it since it's of no use to the average woman. The only ones who need it are those who have had their hair permanently waved and they have already taken so much on faith that it won't be difficult to accept a bottle of fixing solution in addition.

The woman who has just had her hair done will be told that she must purchase a bottle of this and also an atomiser to keep it in and to spray it over her waved head from time to time. When the hair is shampooed it must not be dried by the hot air machine unless the nozzle of the pipe from which the hot air blows is covered so she only has the heat on her hair. If she shampoos her hair at home, of course, she can dry it in the sun or before a fire and as it dries carefully reform the curls into soft loose waves. If the process has been successful she can live in damp and foggy climates, in the sea air or go bathing every day and it will not affect the curliness of the hair. She will, of course, always have to press the waves back into place after the hair has been wet.

The process is expensive, of course and usually harmless. A good beauty parlor expert will tell the customer whether or not her hair will be hurt by waving, in fact will refuse to do it if any harm should result.

Curly Locks.—An auburn shade of hair is not apt to darken as you grow older. Care to keep the scalp healthy is necessary, however. Peggie.—The freckle bleach made from equal parts of glycerine, lemon juice and rose water should be used only when needed. This lotion can be applied by using a small piece of absorbent cotton. Freckles are the result of iron in the blood that the sun brings to the surface. This condition cannot be overcome and all that one can do is to bleach the freckles whenever they offend. Fortunately they rarely disfigure.

Hopeless.—A weight of 130 pounds with a height of 5 ft. in. will only be normal if you are well past 50 years. If you are much younger than this you are too stout and can reduce your hips and legs only through a general reduction.

CHARGES FLUNG IN CHICAGO COURT

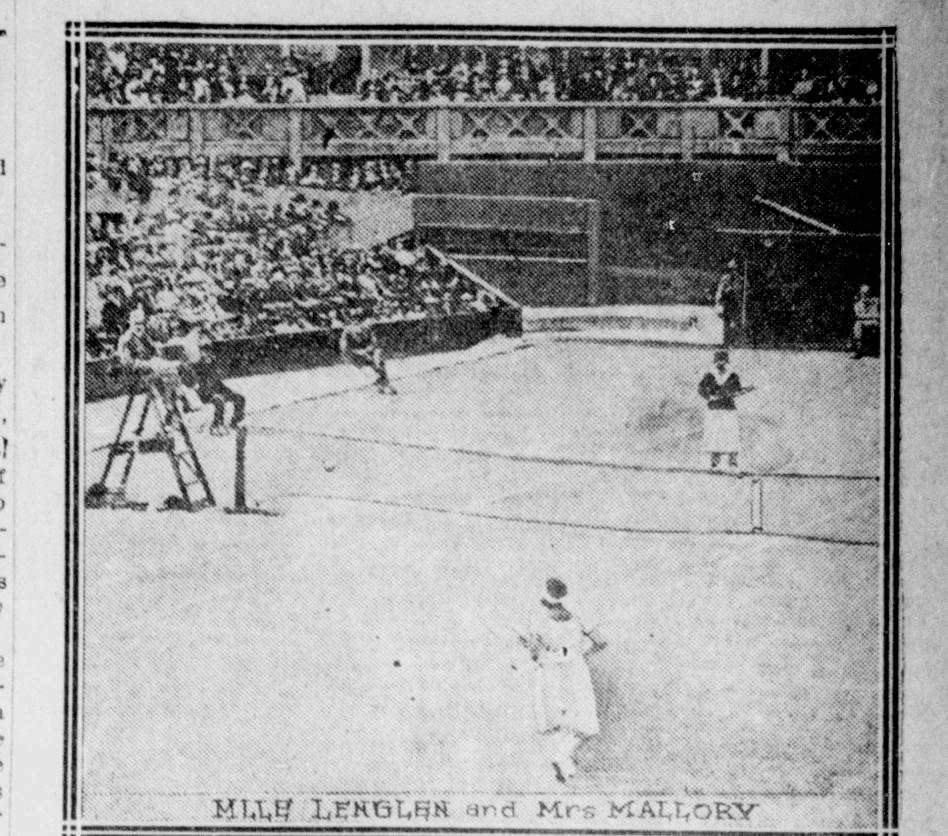

June Ware, 42, colored, was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond Thursday morning when he entered a plea of not guilty before Police Judge E. Dawson Smith on a statutory charge.

Ware is charged with criminally assaulting Edna Nance, 14, colored, who lives on the Cincinnati pike, about a mile and one half out of Xenia. The alleged attack is said to have taken place Wednesday afternoon and Ware was arrested Thursday morning by Patrolman Charles Simms on a warrant sworn out by the Nance girl's father.

The girl, who appeared in police court with her father, told authorities that the attack occurred at a time when she was alone in the house with Ware. Ware told police he was interested in the girl and was helping her father to educate her and her sisters. The girl was placed under the care of a physician after the alleged attack became known.

Ware was released after his hearing Thursday morning on $500 bond furnished by William Shields, colored.

GUARDIAN IS APPOINTED FOR AKRON DRUNK MAN

Akron, Ohio.—A vivid reminder of pre-Volsteadian days was noted in Probate Court here a few days ago when Judge L. D. Slusser appointed a guardian for a drunkard for the purpose of preventing him from squandering an inheritance aggregating several thousand dollars.

It was stated that the inebriated heir became acquainted with a bootlegger who learned of the inheritance. Although from now on the bootlegger will have to deal with the guardian, Probate Court officials voiced the opinion that the chances for the illicit liquor vender meeting with success are "very slim."

The officials visited the two water pumping stations here, and were expected to inspect all cross connections in the city during the day. Dr. Shaffer came here Wednesday and remained over until Thursday continuing his investigation. No new cases of typhoid fever have been reported by officials.

The bacteria count of local milk samples taken by Dr. Grube and made at the Dayton city bacteriological laboratory was received Thursday morning, showing one sample has 7,000 bacteria and one other sample, 25,000, both being considered good and showing that the milk is pure.

Another sample taken was lost in a laboratory accident so that the count could not be made. Other samples will be taken immediately for another count.

A state veterinarian expected to arrive here Monday to assist Dr. C. A. Hoffman, local veterinarian in a dairy herd inspection, has not yet arrived. He is not here Friday, Dr. Hoffman will probably begin an inspection tour by himself.

Frank Chambliss, local bacteriologist, whose bacteria count of milk samples directed attention to the milk supplies during the early part of the epidemic is now employed as a sanitary inspection officer by the city.

DELINQUENCY IS ON INCREASE SAYS REPORT OF COURT

Kansas City Mo., Within a period of two years juvenile delinquency among girls has increased 20 per cent, according to Judge E. E. Porterfield, of the Kansas City Juvenile Court. This perceptible increase can be attributed directly to the lure of bright lights and the gay mothers of today, the Judge declared.

"For the first time in the history of this court I have observed that the girls are going back on me," Judge Porterfield explained. I am shocked. The girls of today are benefited. For some inexplicable reason the majority among the youths of today—boys and girls—refuse to listen to the advice given by their elders.

"The mothers who are constantly seeking entertainments outside of the home and those who make a practice of leaving their broods to the care of a trained nurse are partially responsible for the utter disregard with which girls are treating to a moral code."

Historical data has it that there was once a period when little girls "were made of sugar and spice and everything nice." But those days are pronouncedly passed now, court attendants declare.

Young girls are showing a marked tendency to learn early the ways of dangerous gaiety, nightly revels away from the home and numerous unconventional things, according to a woman probation officer. A loose moral viewpoint is largely to blame, she said. The future of society is at stake, and the courts should immediately adopt strenuous methods to curb these evils, she declared.

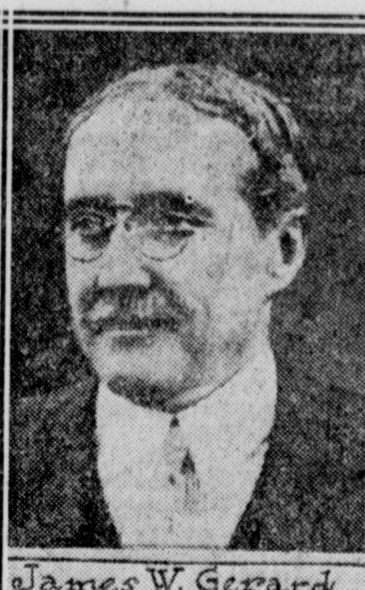

STOLEN BICYCLES ARE NOW RECOVERED

Two bicycles, one stolen Wednesday and one taken Tuesday, were recovered Wednesday night by police.

The bicycle owned by Norbert McCallister, North King Street, was discovered in possession of Clarence Bray, four and one-half miles east of Xenia off the Columbus pike, and was recovered by McCallister with Chief of Police Graham and Patrolman Jones.

Herbert Patterson, South Detroit Street, was recovered by police in possession of John Jordan, colored, aged 12, of 4 Columbus Avenue. Jordan said he was considering trading or buying the bicycle from the Winslow boy, and that he had it in his possession at the time for the purpose of trying it out. Both wheels were returned to their owners.

SHOOTING SCRAPE UNLEASHED THROUGH WORK OF NURSE

Mrs. Margaret Kelly, public health nurse with the Social Service League qualified as a woman detective Thursday morning when she unearthed a shooting scrape among youths in the east end, captured the gun with which the shooting is said to have been done and turned the information over to authorities.

As a result of the shooting Harold Aiken, 15, colored of Church and Jefferson Streets, is suffering from a bullet wound in the left groin and another in the left hand and arrangements are being made by Mrs. Kelly to take him to a Dayton hospital for an X-ray and treatment to avoid the development of gangrene.

Three colored youths suspected of implication in the shooting or of knowing something of it are Alonzo White 16, of 167 Lexington Ave., William Byrd, 13, of 130 Lexington Avenue and Arthur Jackson Sterling 12, of 29 1-2 North Street. Although the shooting is said to have taken place Wednesday afternoon no report of the affair was made to police until Mrs. Kelly had completed her investigation.

Mrs. Kelly gave the three suspected youths the third degree Thursday morning at their homes. They at first maintained that Aikens had been shot by a man who was on the opposite side of a creek from them while they were picking berries near Wilberforce Wednesday afternoon. They later admitted that their original story was not true but just as stoutly contended that they knew nothing of the shooting. Aikens alleges that he shot himself, although authorities discredit the belief that he would shoot himself accidentally twice.

The gun confiscated by Mrs. Kelly was found at the home of Alonzo White, 167 Lexington Avenue, after the boy had repeatedly said that he did not have the gun. He finally produced it. It is a rusty .32 calibre revolver, but is in good working condition. Police were notified of the affair but because of the youth of the boys, who are all minors, the case will probably be handled in juvenile court. Arrests are expected.

ISSUES WARNING AGAINST 'CON' MEN

Chief of Police M. E. Graham issued a warning Thursday afternoon especially to colored people, to be on the lookout for two colored confidence men, who are attempting to work the ancient pocketbook game.

Police had a report Thursday that the men had attempted to work the old game on Jim Tom Biglow, East Third Street, but he was wise to the ancient "con" game, and the men fled after they were unsuccessful in fleecing him.

The "con" men arrived here Thursday morning from Springfield, alighting from a traction car they were spotted by Patrolman Charles Simms, who is working temporarily as a health officer, and who attempted to keep a watch on them. When they disappeared the report came from Biglow that they had attempted to work the pocketbook game on him. Pocketbook operators have fleeced several colored people out of the money they have saved in Xenia in the last few years, and supposed victims are asked to call police if the game is attempted with them.

Beauty Chats

RESULTS OF THE PERMANENT WAVE

When all the complicated process of winding and baking the hair is finished, when the hair is unwound and shampooed, and trained deftly into loose, natural looking Marcel waves by the skillful hands of the attendant, when the hair has dried so these waves are temporarily set there is only one remaining thing to do—spraying the hair with a scented solution called a fixing fluid. Personally I haven't an idea as to the contents of this fluid, I have not tried to analyse it since it's of no use to the average woman. The only ones who need it are those who have had their hair permanently waved and they have already taken good heed on faith that it won't be difficult to accept a bottle of fixing solution in addition.

The woman who has just had her hair done will be told that she must purchase a bottle of this and also an atomizer to keep it in and to spray it over her waved head from time to time. When the hair is shampooed it must not be dried by the hot air machine unless the nozzle of the pipe from which it blows is covered so she only has the heat on her hair. If she shampoos her hair at home, of course, she can dry it in the sun or before a fire and as it dries carefully reform the curls into soft loose waves. If the process has been successful she can live in damp and foggy climates, in the sea air or go bathing every day and it will not affect the curliness of the hair. She will, of course, always have to press the waves back into place after the hair has been wet.

The process is expensive, of course and usually harmless. A good beauty parlor expert will tell the customer whether or not her hair will be hurt by waving, in fact will refuse to do it if any harm should result.

Curly Locks:—An auburn shade of hair is not apt to darken as you grow older. Care to keep the scalp healthy is necessary, however. Peggie:—The freckle bleach made from equal parts of glycerine, lemon juice and rose water should be used only when needed. This lotion can be applied by using a small piece of absorbent cotton. Freckles are the result of iron in the blood that the sun brings to the surface. This condition cannot be overcome and all that one can do is to bleach the freckles whenever they offend. Fortunately they rarely disfigure.

Hopeless:—A weight of 130 pounds, with a height of 5 ft., in, will only be normal if you are well past 50 years. If you are much younger than this you are too stout and can reduce your hips and legs only through a general reduction.

CHARGES FLUNG IN CHICAGO COURT

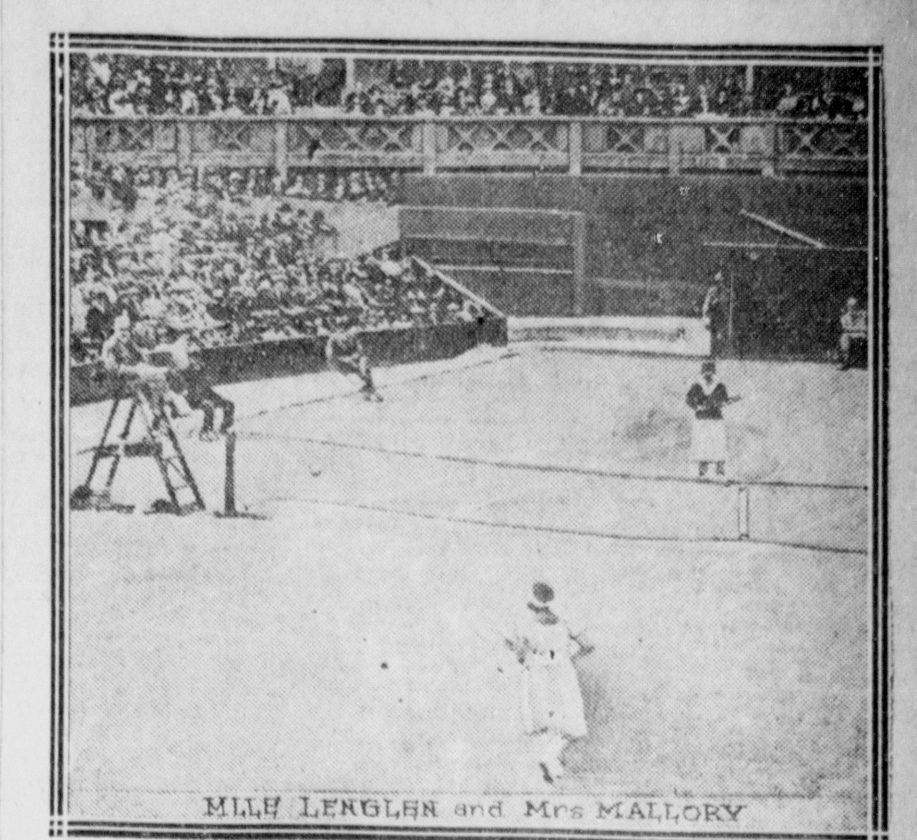

June Ware, 42, colored, was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond Thursday morning when he entered a plea of not guilty before Police Judge E. Dawson Smith on a statutory charge.

Ware is charged with criminally assaulting Edna Nance, 14, colored, who lives on the Cincinnati pike, about a mile and one half out of Xenia. The alleged attack is said to have taken place Wednesday afternoon and Ware was arrested Thursday morning by Patrolman Charles Simms on a warrant sworn out by the Nance girl's father.

The girl, who appeared in police court with her father, told authorities that the attack occurred at a time when she was alone in the house with Ware. Ware told police he was interested in the girl and was helping her father to educate her and her sisters. The girl was placed under the care of a physician after the alleged attack became known.

Ware was released after his hearing Thursday morning on $500 bond furnished by William Shields, colored.

FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.

The numerical restriction now in force reduces the chances of undesirable immigration in quantity but not in quality. The effort now is to apply to our policy a new and more scientific method of exclusion. Instead of testing candidates on their arrival at American ports it is proposed to ascertain their fitness for admission before they start. It is manifest that the inquiry can be far more effective and thoroughgoing if it is carried on where they have lived and where they are known—where their reputation can be investigated—than if it is undertaken at an immigration post where little more can be learned than what can be extracted from the immigrants themselves.

Fortunately, we already have machinery that can be adopted to the work. The plan in outline is that every intending immigrant shall be required before embarking to procure from an American consul a certificate that he is a fit person to be received here. There is a consul at every foreign port from which immigrants sail. If the consuls do their duty, they can find out whether any man who wishes to come here is or is not of the desirable class, in mind, in body and in political opinions. It is to be hoped that Congress will find time, even when so many other important matters are before it, to add that barrier to those that it has already set up to safeguard the country against such evils as are now spreading through many of the countries of Europe.

THE COSTLIEST WAY.

The Department of Labor estimates that not less than 1,150,000 workers in the United States are now out on strike. The strikes range from the great basic coal and railroad industries to the smallest occupation employing but a few workers. The figures give new opportunity for calling attention to an old point—the tremendous financial loss involved in strikes.

The wage loss runs into millions a day. As some of the strikes now in progress have continued for several months, the total sum becomes appalling.

Aside from the wage loss there is the lowered demand for working materials which these forces would use if they were busy, and there is the lost buying power which a steady wage would afford them, and so on, in an endless economic chain.

It is an old story in waste of time and money and men. The only reason for repeating it is the hope that after countless repetitions, men who work and men who hire will see that industrial warfare is the costliest way to solve their difficulties and find some better method.

GAS TASTER.

A new occupation has been created by a Washington, D. C., citizen, who knows the correct taste of good gasoline. The man purchased some gas at a station, but returned almost immediately to say that the gas was mostly water.

The men at the station were indignant, protesting they mixed no water with the fuel and that they knew none was put in before it came to them. The purchaser then shocked them by saying, "But I tasted it, I tell you, and I know there is water in it."

A test was made, at the manager's request, and to the general surprise, a good deal of water was found. That caused a thorough investigation with the result that the guilty party was located. Very heavy rains had caused the formation of a pool of water at the tank intake. The latter had a leak which permitted the entrance of water.

After that the gasoline expert, who had been called in to make the tests said the gas taster, no matter what his present occupation or salary, could make a fortune tasting gas for oil companies.

It's a new field, and probably open to any enterprising man or woman.

MELONS AND MARKETS.

A meeting of the growers and shippers was held the other day at the United States bureau of markets, at Brawley, Calif., to discuss the advisability of holding down shipments of cantaloupes from the Imperial valley to five crates per acre for two days. Over 500 cars went out of the valley in one day.

This is a slight gain in taking thought about distribution from the old days when carloads of peaches were shipped and then thrown away at the receiving point to "keep the price up." Everybody lost in that case.

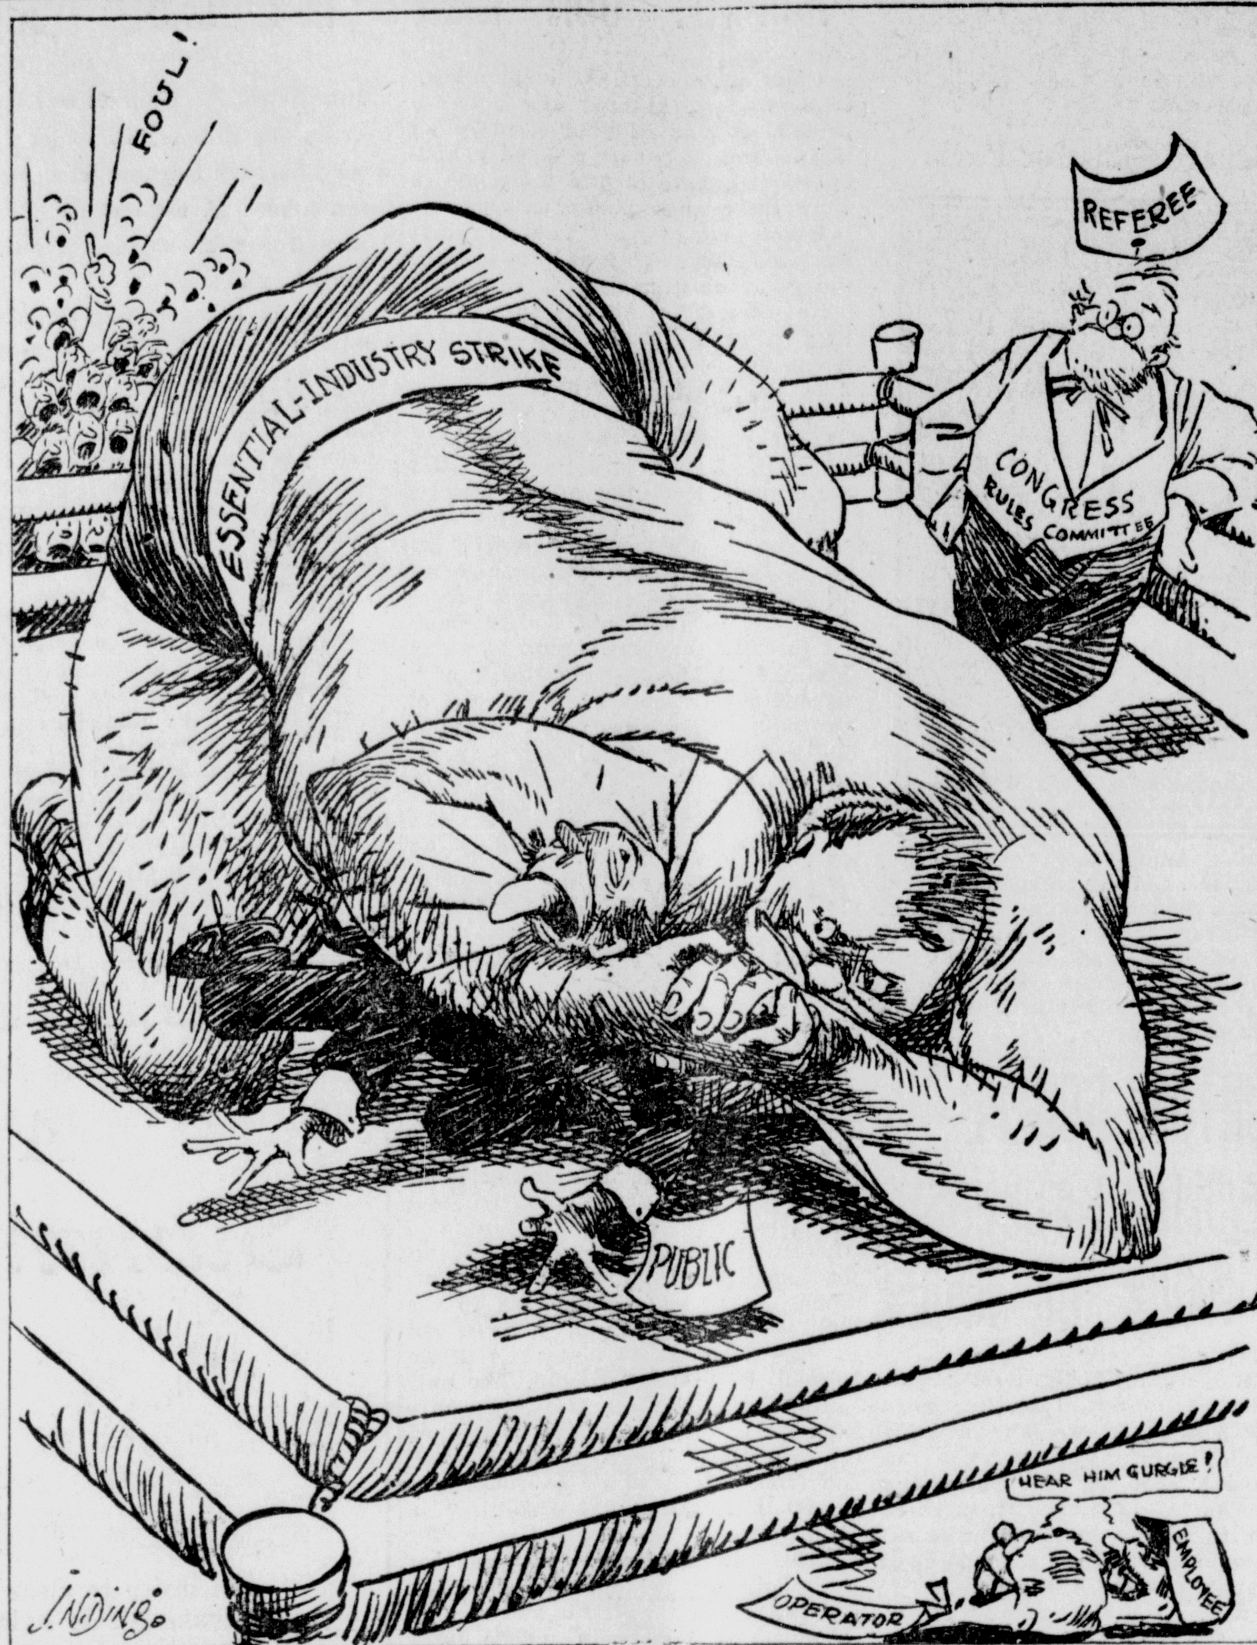

There is no question of glutting the city markets with ripe fruit. The market that can be glutted is only that small fraction of the population which can buy at high prices. There is no limit to the amount of fruit in season which a population can absorb at prices within reason.

But somewhere along the line between the underpaid farmer and the overcharged consumer the price undergoes a change into something new and strange. Icing, transportation and reasonable services of those who handle it do not explain the difference. American business enterprise, with all its productive efficiency, is still strangely backward about distribution.

BEFORE AND AFTER THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

By A. R. Pugh.—For about twenty-five years I have been associated with the Gospel Wagon and Gospel Auto work in Cincinnati. Prior to the passage of the Eighteenth Constitutional Amendment, there was scarcely ever a night that we did not come in contact with men either under the influence of liquor or debauched by its power. Many times our prayers ascended to heaven from the platform of the Gospel Auto that God would put an end to this, our nation's blight. Our prayers have been answered, for since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment the character of the street crowds has been radically changed. We do not find the drunkard except in rare cases upon our streets. We do not find the scores of young men in the morning of life, coming from the saloons, and nightly parading the streets of the red-light district following "her whose steps lay hold on hell." I repeat, things have changed. Thank God, things have changed. May the church of Jesus Christ stand as an adamant hill against the return to our fair land of the blighting influence of the rum traffic. Men who would fain make us believe things are no better are either blind to the truth or are knowingly making false statements. There is still a great work for the Gospel Auto in reaching the unchurched masses; but our message now is to the indifferent and not to the lewd and drunken. Our Christian ministers of Cincinnati should give this splendid work upon our streets their help.

An investigation is being held by officials of the Pan Handle railroad for the purpose of fixing the responsibility for the wreck at Trebeins in which four men lost their lives.

Since the first of June we have had no spell of weather that could be called unpleasantly hot. Just enough rain and just enough of temperature.

The general business situation continues eminently satisfactory. There are no signs of serious reaction, on the contrary there are increasing indications that we are to have a good fall trade. Corn is making splendid progress and everything points to a bumper crop.

AUTHORITY TO PURCHASE SUPPLIES OF COAL ASKED

Columbus, July 27.—Authority to purchase badly needed supplies of coal in the open markets for state institutions is to be asked today of the state board of control, according to announcement made by State Finance Director Davis.

Director Davis declared that coal dealers are no longer willing to bid on state contracts owing to inability to promise delivery. From 20 to 40 days supply of coal on hand is the general report from the various institutions, according to Davis.

MARION COAL DEALERS FRANTIC OVER OUTLOOK

Marion, July 27.—Local coal dealers are frantic over the coal outlook. The situation is so acute that there is danger of plants being closed before August 1, it was said today. A survey indicates that the largest plants here have a meager supply. The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Railway Company which operates the local street car lines here and at Delaware as well as the interurban between Columbus and Marion, has sufficient coal to last six months.

CHANGE DELIVERY TIME Washington, July 27.—Special delivery letters will not be sent out from any postoffice in the country after 11 o'clock at night, under new postal regulations.

Such letters not delivered prior to that hour will be "delivered as soon as possible" after 7 o'clock the next morning.

WINNING YOUR IDEALS

Next to having ideals is the problem of how they may be won.

What a long way from the world of men and women we would be if we did not have this inspiring adventure ever before us.

For unless our ideals seem almost impossible of attainment, our spirits cannot be properly aroused to work for them with unceasing ardor.

It was Robert Browning who gave us this ringing line: "Our reach should exceed our grasp—or else what is Heaven for?"

A friend gave another line at luncheon long ago and I typed it and glued it to the front of my typewriter where I could read it during every mood of thought while at my machine. Here it is: "Make no small plans—they have no magic to stir the imagination."

Ideals often change as we change. But this should discourage us in no way. On the other hand, this evidence of growth should enlarge and make more plain and possible of attainment these very ideals.

I have heard many express the sentiment: What are ideals good for anyway? Well, in the first place, they help to keep a man from meditating upon himself too much, in a selfish way. And besides, ideals may be given away!

Of what value is the color of the rose or the fragrance of the violet?

Our ideals make up the coloring and fragrance of all our conduct. Without them we would be dull mov-

GRAPE-NUTS is a regular "three bags full" of the best food qualities of whole wheat flour and malted barley, carefully mixed and slowly baked—

To develop all their appetizing flavor,

To preserve all their wholesomeness,

And to provide nature's "broom" that keeps the digestive system spick and span.

There's not a bit of artificial sweetening in Grape-Nuts—it just becomes sweet of its own accord in the long baking.

And that enticing flavor—how good it is with good milk or cream! Fruits, too, fresh or cooked, add to the delight of a dish of Grape-Nuts, morning, noon or sundown.

It is a compact, ready-to-eat food—no cooking needed. Why not try it for tomorrow's breakfast?

RICHES.

I sometimes yearn for coin to burn, for all the brands of money; "this life," I think, "with loads of chink, would certainly be sunny. Now down the road, to my abode, the wolf is drawing closer; and I must scheme and plan and dream of how to pay the grocer. The rent is due and landlords two will soon demand their dollars, and bailiffs bum will shortly come, with other noxious callers. The whole year round I lack the pound, the kopeck and the shilling; I envy, then, the wealthy men who've made a princely killing." At divers dates with wealthy skates I mingle and foregather, and hear them swear and groan with care until they're in a lather. The market slumps a brace of jumps and millionaires are roaring; the prices rise and wealthy guys are busted by their soaring. For discontent the Croesus gent has all the records broken, he gathers up the loving cup and every other token. When I observe his weary curve, his care beyond all telling, I'm reconciled to bailiffs wild who drill around my dwelling.

FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.

The numerical restriction now in force reduces the chances of undesirable immigration in quantity but not in quality. The effort now is to apply to our policy a new and more scientific method of exclusion. Instead of testing candidates on their arrival at American ports it is proposed to ascertain their fitness for admission before they start. It is manifest that the inquiry can be far more effective and thoroughgoing if it is carried on where they have lived and where they are known—where their reputation can be investigated—than if it is undertaken at an immigration post where little more can be learned than what can be extracted from the immigrants themselves.

Fortunately, we already have machinery that can be adopted to the work. The plan in outline is that every intending immigrant shall be required before embarking to procure from an American consul a certificate that he is a fit person to be received here. There is a consul at every foreign port from which immigrants sail. If the consuls do their duty, they can find out whether any man who wishes to come here is or is not of the desirable class, in mind, in body and in political opinions. It is to be hoped that Congress will find time, even when so many other important matters are before it, to add that barrier to those that it has already set up to safeguard the country against such evils as are now spreading through many of the countries of Europe.

THE COSTLIEST WAY.

The Department of Labor estimates that not less than 1,150,000 workers in the United States are now out on strike. The strikes range from the great basic coal and railroad industries to the smallest occupation employing but a few workers. The figures give new opportunity for calling attention to an old point—the tremendous financial loss involved in strikes.

The wage loss runs into millions a day. As some of the strikes now in progress have continued for several months, the total sum becomes appalling.

Aside from the wage loss there is the lowered demand for working materials which these forces would use if they were busy, and there is the lost buying power which a steady wage would afford them, and so on, in an endless economic chain.

It is an old story in waste of time and money and men. The only reason for repeating it is the hope that after countless repetitions, men who work and men who hire will see that industrial warfare is the costliest way to solve their difficulties and find some better method.

GAS TASTER.

A new occupation has been created by a Washington, D. C., citizen, who knows the correct taste of good gasoline. The man purchased some gas at a station, but returned almost immediately to say that the gas was mostly water.

The men at the station were indignant, protesting they mixed no water with the fuel and that they knew none was put in before it came to them. The purchaser then shocked them by saying, "But I tasted it, I tell you, and I know there is water in it."

A test was made, at the manager's request, and to the general surprise, a good deal of water was found. That caused a thorough investigation with the result that the guilty party was located. Very heavy rains had caused the formation of a pool of water at the tank intake. The latter had a leak which permitted the entrance of water.

After that the gasoline expert, who had been called in to make the tests said the gas taster, no matter what his present occupation or salary, could make a fortune tasting gas for oil companies.

It's a new field, and probably open to any enterprising man or woman.

MELONS AND MARKETS.

A meeting of the growers and shippers was held the other day at the United States bureau of markets, at Brawley, Calif., to discuss the advisability of holding down shipments of cantaloupes from the Imperial valley to five crates per acre for two days. Over 500 cars went out of the valley in one day.

This is a slight gain in taking thought about distribution from the old days when carloads of peaches were shipped and then thrown away at the receiving point to "keep the price up." Everybody lost in that case.

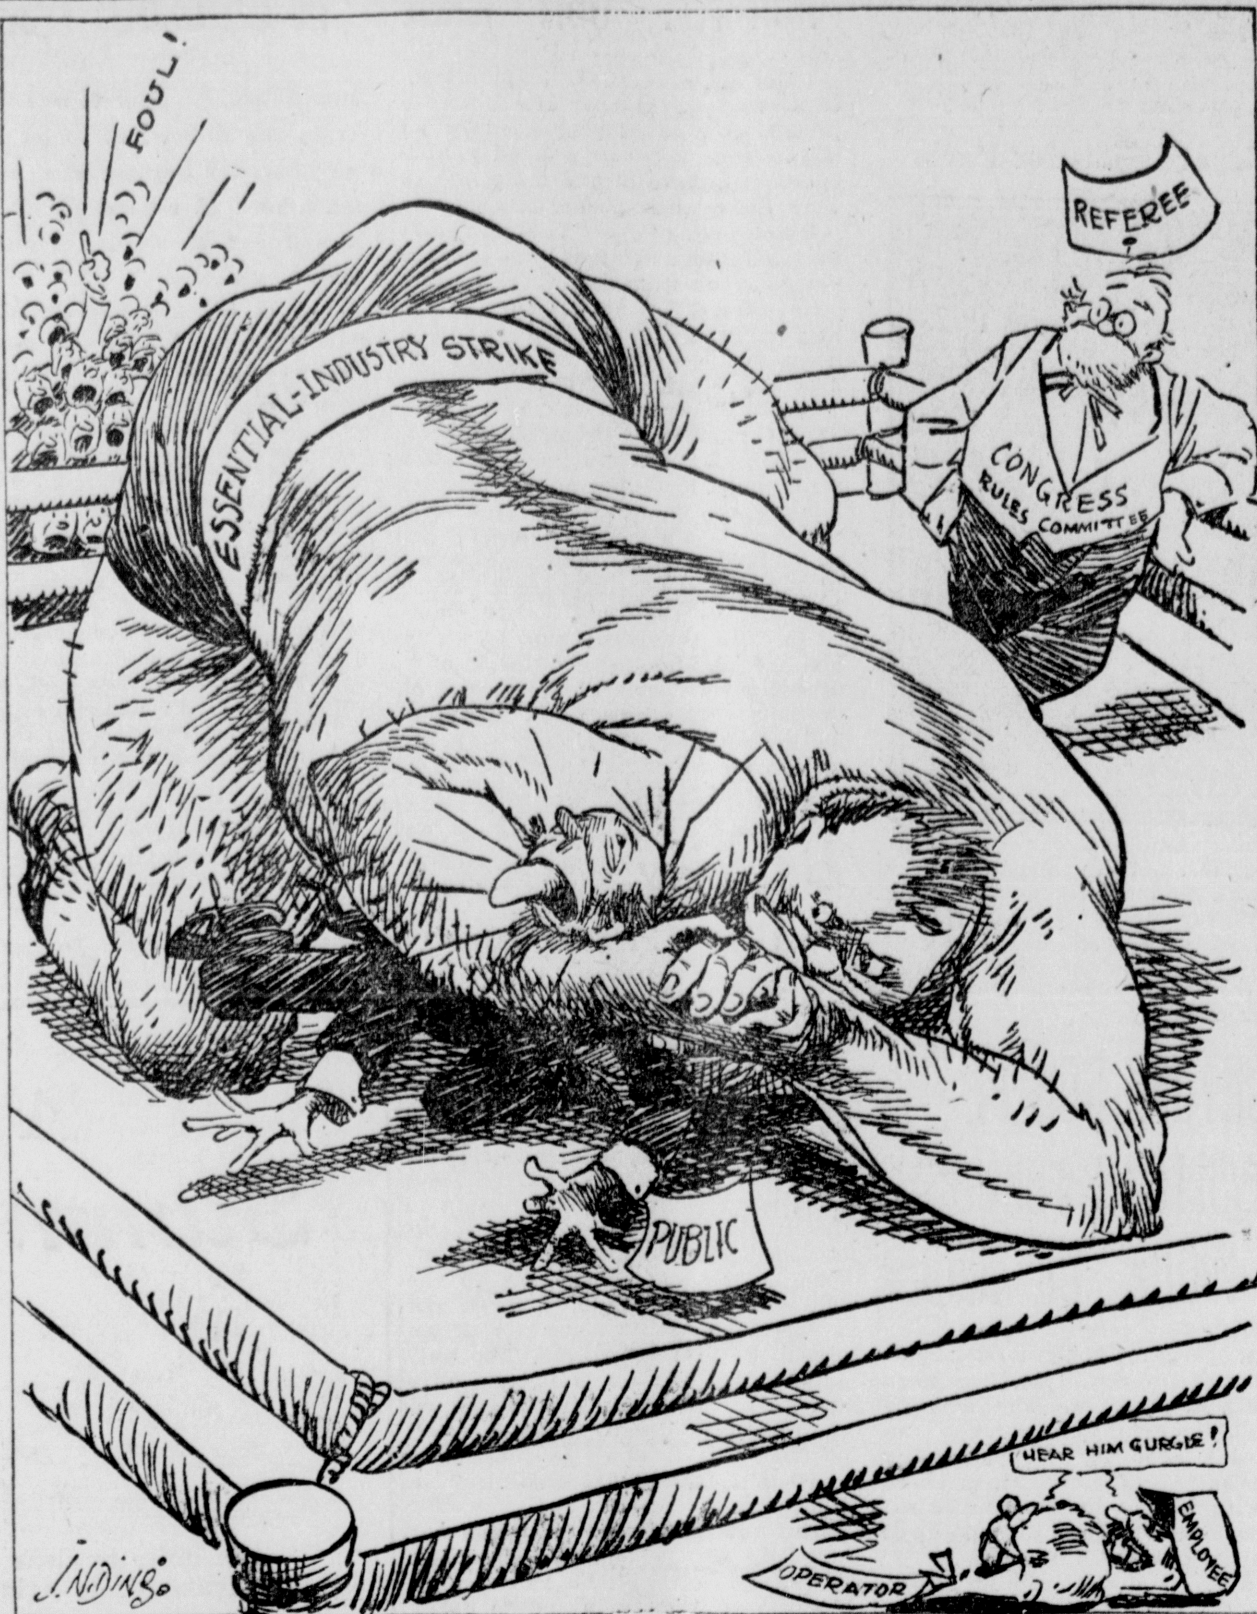

There is no question of glutting the city markets with ripe fruit. The market that can be glutted is only that small fraction of the population which can buy at high prices. There is no limit to the amount of fruit in season which a population can absorb at prices within reason.

But somewhere along the line between the underpaid farmer and the overcharged consumer the price undergoes a change into something new and strange. Icing, transportation and reasonable services of those who handle it do not explain the difference. American business enterprise, with all its productive efficiency, is still strangely backward about distribution.

BEFORE AND AFTER THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

By A. R. Pugh.—For about twenty-five years I have been associated with the Gospel Wagon and Gospel Auto work in Cincinnati. Prior to the passage of the Eighteenth Constitutional Amendment, there was scarcely ever a night that we did not come in contact with men either under the influence of liquor or debauched by its power. Many times our prayers ascended to heaven from the platform of the Gospel Auto that God would put an end to this, our nation's blight. Our prayers have been answered, for since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment the character of the street crowds has been radically changed. We do not find the drunkard except in rare cases upon our streets. We do not find the scores of young men in the morning of life, coming from the saloons, and nightly parading the streets of the red-light district following "her whose steps lay hold on hell." I repeat, things have changed. Thank God, things have changed. May the church of Jesus Christ stand as an adamant hill against the return to our fair land of the blighting influence of the rum traffic. Men who would fain make us believe things are no better are either blind to the truth or are knowingly making false statements. There is still a great work for the Gospel Auto in reaching the unchurched masses; but our message now is to the indifferent and not to the lewd and drunken. Our Christian ministers of Cincinnati should give this splendid work upon our streets their help.

THE ONLY PLACE WHERE THE "STRANGLE HOLD" IS STILL ALLOWED

1902--Twenty Years Ago--1922

An investigation is being held by officials of the Pan Handle railroad for the purpose of fixing the responsibility for the wreck at Trebeins in which four men lost their lives.

Since the first of June we have had no spell of weather that could be called unpleasantly hot. Just enough rain and just enough of temperature.

The general business situation continues eminently satisfactory. There are no signs of serious reaction, on the contrary there are increasing indications that we are to have a good fall trade. Corn is making splendid progress and everything points to a bumper crop.

The threshing machine of De Haven and Ridenour did a remarkably large piece of work Saturday, when 700 bushels of rye was threshed.

The net profits of the mid-summer sale held Saturday by the women of the First Baptist Church was $50.

AUTHORITY TO PURCHASE SUPPLIES OF COAL ASKED

Columbus, July 27.—Authority to purchase badly needed supplies of coal in the open markets for state institutions is to be asked today of the state board of control, according to announcement made by State Finance Director Davis.

Director Davis declared that coal dealers are no longer willing to bid on state contracts owing to inability to promise delivery. From 20 to 40 days supply of coal on hand is the general report from the various institutions, according to Davis.

MARION COAL DEALERS FRANTIC OVER OUTLOOK

Marion, July 27.—Local coal dealers are frantic over the coal outlook. The situation is so acute that there is danger of plants being closed before August 1, it was said today. A survey indicates that the largest plants here have a meager supply. The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Railway Company which operates the local street car lines here and at Delaware as well as the interurban between Columbus and Marion, has sufficient coal to last six months.

CHANGE DELIVERY TIME

Washington, July 27.—Special delivery letters will not be sent out from any postoffice in the country after 11 o'clock at night, under new postal regulations.

Such letters not delivered prior to that hour will be "delivered as soon as possible" after 7 o'clock the next morning.

WINNING YOUR IDEALS

Next to having ideals is the problem of how they may be won.

What a long way from the world of men and women we would be if we did not have this inspiring adventure ever before us.

For unless our ideals seem almost impossible of attainment, our spirits cannot be properly aroused to work for them with unceasing ardor.

It was Robert Browning who gave us this ringing line: "Our reach should exceed our grasp—or else what is Heaven for?"

A friend gave another line at luncheon long ago and I typed it and glued it to the front of my typewriter where I could read it during every mood of thought while at my machine. Here it is: "Make no small plans—they have no magic to stir the imagination."

Ideals often change as we change. But this should discourage us in no way. On the other hand, this evidence of growth should enlarge and make more plain and possible of attainment these very ideals.

I have heard many express the sentiment: What are ideals good for anyway? Well, in the first place, they help to keep a man from meditating upon himself too much, in a selfish way. And besides, ideals may be given away!

Of what value is the color of the rose or the fragrance of the violet? Our ideals make up the coloring and fragrance of all our conduct. Without them we would be dull mov-

Back to the Grain Fields for Health

GRAPE-NUTS is a regular "three bags full" of the best food qualities of whole wheat flour and malted barley, carefully mixed and slowly baked—

To develop all their appetizing flavor,

To preserve all their wholesomeness,

And to provide nature's "broom" that keeps the digestive system spick and span.

There's not a bit of artificial sweetening in Grape-Nuts—it just becomes sweet of its own accord in the long baking.

And that enticing flavor—how good it is with good milk or cream! Fruits, too, fresh or cooked, add to the delight of a dish of Grape-Nuts, morning, noon or sundown.

It is a compact, ready-to-eat food—no cooking needed. Why not try it for tomorrow's breakfast?

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

RICHES.

I sometimes yearn for coin to burn, for all the brands of money; "this life," I think, "with loads of chink, would certainly be sunny. Now down the road, to my abode, the wolf is drawing closer; and I must scheme and plan and dream of how to pay the grocer. The rent is due and landlords two will soon demand their dollars, and bailiffs bum will shortly come, with other noxious callers. The whole year round I lack the pound, the kopeck and the shilling; I envy, then, the wealthy men who've made a princely killing." At divers dates with wealthy skates I mingle and foregather, and hear them swear and groan with care until they're in a lather. The market slumps a brace of jumps and millionaires are roaring; the prices rise and wealthy guys are busted by their soaring. For discontent the Croesus gent has all the records broken, he gathers up the loving cup and every other token. When I observe his weary curve, his care beyond all telling, I'm reconciled to bailiffs wild who drill around my dwelling.

"Almost Choked Last Night with gas around my heart. Couldn't breathe," many people say.

No such choking or anxiety if you will take Baalmann's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and particularly for all the bad effects from gas pressure against your most vital organ—your heart.

That empty, gone and gnawing feeling at the pit of your stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling, with heart palpitation, will vanish, and you will once more be able to take a deep breath, so often prevented by gas pressing against your heart and lungs.

These unique tablets are sold by Sayre & Hemphill, and other druggists. Be sure to insist upon the genuine Baalmann's Gas Tablets in the yellow package, price one dollar. J. Baalmann, Chemist, San Francisco.

GIRL, 10, GIVES BIRTH TO CHILD

Sidney, July 27.—Elizabeth Irvin 10-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Irvin, living at Hardin, five miles west of here, gave birth last week to a boy baby weighing seven and one-half pounds.

Sidney and Shelby county are agog over the occurrence, and an investigation by the grand jury at its next session is being forecast locally.

The baby was born last Sunday, and the little mother is just 10 years, 11 months and 13 days older than her child. The child appears to be perfectly normal in every way and both mother and child are reported by attending physicians to be doing nicely.

Attending physicians say it is a rarity that a girl so young should give birth to a child, and medical records, they say, contain mention of only two cases where children were born to younger mothers. The attending physicians were Dr. M. F. Husey and Dr. H. E. Beebe, of this city. Dr. Beebe formerly was a member of the state board of medical examiners.

Investigation of the case, it is expected, will lead to Harrod in Allen county, where the Irvins lived until last November, when the Reverend Irvin moved his family to Hardin to accept the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal church there. He is not a regularly appointed minister of the Methodist conference, but was sent to Hardin as supply pastor.

Neither Reverend Irvin nor his wife have commented on the case for publication. They have three other children.

INFANT CALLED BY DEATH EARLY THURSDAY MORNING

The bright, beautiful life of John Cooper Balentine came to a close at 2:10 Thursday morning. On Sept. 30, 1921, he came into the home of H. Dwight and Margaret Balentine, and lacked three days of completing ten months with them.

Although for some weeks he had not been well, his serious illness from enderoclogis began only a little over a week ago. His father and mother, his grandparents, Mrs. John A. Cooper of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Balentine of Cannonsburg, Pa., with their families and immediate relatives are sadly bereft. His short stay has brought him a host of friends who keenly lament his departure.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Second United Presbyterian Church Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock; interment at Woodland cemetery.

SAYS WOMAN MUST GIVE UP THOUGHTS OF MARRIAGE ON ENTERING DIPLOMATIC SERVICE OF COUNTRY

London, July 27.—If a woman wishes to enter the diplomatic service and succeed she must give up all thoughts of marriage, according to Mile, Madejda Stancioff, daughter of the Bulgarian minister to Great Britain, who has just been appointed first secretary to the Bulgarian legation in Washington.

"Matrimony and diplomacy do not mix," said Mile. Stancioff today. "I believe that my appointment is a victory for womankind. The day is near at hand when women will be doing every kind of work, manual, intellectual, that man does. The differences between women and men are rapidly disappearing. They are becoming more and more alike in every way."

"If a woman wishes to succeed as a diplomat, she must remain single. I have made up my mind to do so. It is not a question of desire but of expediency. The chief factor of the issue is nationality."

"As I realize that I have been chosen to explore this new field, I can not help but feel very happy and shy. I know that, because I am a woman, men will expect more of me than of a man. They will think to find in me more balance, more acuteness, more 'old head on young shoulders'. For of course, an exception has to be exception. I shall do my best. Perhaps a woman is better able to bring the human touch into diplomacy than a man. It may be even easier in America—the land of philanthropists.

"Diplomacy has undergone a change since the war. No longer can the charge be made that they merely flit from one country to another making official reports. Nowadays a diplomat must study the country in which he is living to learn ways of benefiting his homeland."

GRANGE WILL HAVE DISPLAY AT FAIR RIVALLING OTHERS

The second annual Fair exhibit of the Greene County Grange will be more than double in importance the exhibit at the annual Fair last year according to Grange officials.

The Grange exhibit was started last year but more space has been allotted the exhibits this year, and more time has been taken by the different granges entered in preparing these exhibits. Six granges are entered. They are Beaver, Charity, Miami, Xenia, Caesarcreek and Jamestown.

S. H. Shawhan, Joseph T. Hutchison and John Short, are the members in charge of the grange contests, which will be held in the school exhibit hall this year, where double the space used last year will be available. Prizes amounting to $350 are being awarded by the board, and awards will be made on the point system. The awards will be made on the various departments: Grains, threshed and in sheaf; flowers, plants and grasses; fruit; vegetables, green and dry; melons, pumpkins and squashes; correct labelling; canned goods; fancy work and arbaked goods; fancy work and arrangement; and attractiveness. The premiums offered are first premium $100; second premium, $75; third premium, $50; fourth premium, $40 and $25 to every other Grange making a creditable exhibit.

Many of the Granges entering the contest have been preparing to make a good showing for a month or more and with double space for exhibits offered and the prize money increased, it is expected that the Grange contests this year will play a big part in the annual fair exhibits.

PICNIC ENJOYED BY MISSIONARY PARTY

With sixty women in attendance, the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church enjoyed on of the most delightful of its annual mid-summer outings at the lovely country home of Mrs. John McClain on the Columbus pike, Wednesday afternoon.

Long tables on the lawn were decorated with bouquets of handsome gladioli which were raised in the gardens of Mrs. Fred McClain. The tables were spread with quantities of picnic dainties. The evening was an ideal one for picnicking, and the party of Xenians enjoyed the event to the utmost. The committee in charge served as hostesses, and consisted of Mrs. John McClain, Mrs. W. H. Tilford, Mrs. Anna M. Havestick and Miss Ervin.

CONKLINS HOLD FAMILY REUNION

Eighty five members of the Conklin family in this vicinity enjoyed their annual reunion and outing at the Greene County fairgrounds Wednesday. The picnic dinner was served at noon in the dining hall, and the rest of the day was devoted to visiting among the women, and quiet pitching by the men. Among the several visitors were the Rev. and Mrs. S. K. Spahr of Youngstown. The family organization retained its former officers, C. O. Conklin, president, and Mrs. William Bootes, secretary.

The Misses Mary, Velina and Helen Smith, spent Tuesday at Kingman, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Volcha Hackey and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruddick and Mrs. Rouse of South Bend, Ind., have returned home after spending a few days with Mrs. Sadie Weaver and family. Mrs. Charles Lewis, of the Eleazar neighborhood. Mrs. Weaver also visited in Hillsboro for a few days.

The Misses Julia and Jane Whittington, twin daughters of Frank Whittington of Springfield, are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Nichols of the New Burlington pike.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Maddaux of Frankfort, is expected Saturday to spend a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hartsack, of Eleazar neighborhood.

Ralph Oglesbee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oglesbee of the Mt. Tabor neighborhood, who has been ill of typhoid fever for three weeks, continues in an unchanged condition.

MISS JOHNS ENTERTAIN CLUB

Miss Thelma Johns was a charming hostess when she received thirteen members of the P. A. L. S. club. The girls spent the evening on the lawn, making merry with games and a guessing contest. Miss Ruth Humble and Miss Ruth Lewis were fortunate enough to win the prizes. A refreshment course was served.

It is said in automotive circles that W. C. Durant accomplishes what he plans; to him difficulties are so many spurs to greater effort, making one get on the faster.

He is the man who made the Buick. He conceived and organized General Motors, including Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile. Certainly a considerable monument to one man's tireless energy.

But now, when many men would be content to enjoy a well-earned vacation, he is up to the armpits in the business of launching the crowning effort of his career.

GRANGE WILL HAVE DISPLAY AT FAIR RIVALLING OTHERS

The second annual fair exhibit of the Greene County Grange will be more than double in importance the exhibit at the annual fair last year according to Grange officials.

The Grange exhibit was started last year but more space has been allotted the exhibits this year, and more time has been taken by the different granges entered in preparing these exhibits. Six granges are entered. They are Beaver, Charity, Miami, Xenia, Caesar Creek and Jamestown.

S. H. Shawhan, Joseph T. Hutchison and John Short, are the members in charge of the grange contests, which will be held in the school exhibit hall this year, where double the space used last year will be available. Prizes amounting to $350 are being awarded by the board, and awards will be made on the point system. The awards will be made on the various departments: Grains, threshed and in sheaf; flowers, plants and grasses; fruit; vegetables, green and dry; melons, pumpkins and squashes; correct labeling; canned goods; fancy work and art; baked goods; fancy work and arrangement; and attractiveness. The premiums offered are first premium, $100; second premium, $75; third premium, $50; fourth premium, $40 and $25 to every other Grange making a creditable exhibit.

Many of the Granges entering the contest have been preparing to make a good showing for a month or more and with double space for exhibits offered and the prize money increased, it is expected that the Grange contests this year will play a big part in the annual fair exhibits.

GOVERNMENT MUST STEP IN IF LABOR CAN'T AGREE SAYS FESS IN ADDRESS AT REPUBLICAN RALLY AT YELLOW SPRINGS

"I am certain that coal must be mined and railroads must be run, and if they can't agree the government is bigger than individual party in the dispute and must step in to protect the interests of the public."

So said Dr. S. D. Fess, Congressman from Yellow Springs and aspirant for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator at the preliminary Republican rally arranged by the "Fess for Senator Club" and staged beneath the shade trees on the Antioch College campus Wednesday afternoon.

While other candidates for prominent offices were introduced and spoke briefly, Congressman Fess addressed was principal speech of the afternoon. The Congressman reviewed his political career, from the time he was defeated for Congressional election in another district back in 1900 until his election in this district and his succeeding ten years in the Lower House. Just as certainly as you are facing me and I am speaking to you, I am going to the Senate of the United States," was the prediction of Dr. Fess in the opening of his address.

Some time was devoted by Dr. Fess to explain his position on the "bloc" question, in which he said he had been misinterpreted through a quotation of his regarding the "agricultural bloc." That he is not opposed to the "bloc" system was the statement of the Congressman. "I cannot stand for any particular interest alone—I stand for the interest of the public," was the way he explained his position. "Group control for any cause is not safe legislation—the only safe legislation is when you consider the public."

The war debts will be a heavy burden on the public for years to come said Dr. Fess. "This is the only government," he said, "on the face of the earth that has reduced its public debts since the world war closed."

Two countries in Europe, Britain and Denmark, he said, have balanced their debts, and all others have increased instead of being reduced. The United States has reduced its war debt two and one-eighth billions of dollars, he explained. The speaker also paid a tribute to Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department. "When Mellon took charge of the Treasury, the biggest problem he had to face was a floating debt of three million dollars," he said. "This was money borrowed from the banks for six months at a time, and when the six months were up, other money was borrowed to take care of it. As a result banking resources were tied up. I asked for a special resolution providing taxes to pay this debt, but it did not pass. Mellon then changed his entire plan of financing the debt, and issued one year, two year and three year certificates to take care of it. As a result he saved the government 450 millions in interest, money was made freer and business began to pick up."

"The problems that came to the Harding administration by the war were unlike anything ever met by any other administration. But the Harding administration goes straight to the point with no ambiguity and leaving no doubt." Charles E. Hughes, he said, is the greatest Secretary of State America ever had.

"The biggest problem before the civilized world today outside of foreign relations, is how we are going to adjust the disputes between capital and labor. Capital must be permitted to invest at a reasonable profit, but while capital is considering its profit, it must not take advantage of any class or of the public. If it does, the government must step in as it does through the Sherman law and other acts. Labor must be given the freest opportunity to be employed steadily at good wages to maintain our standards of civilization. The public man or Congressman in the Legislature must consider the rights of capital to reasonable profit and also the rights of labor to employment at reasonable wages to maintain civilization.

"Without capital labor can't be employed and without labor capital can't invest. Our chief concern is how capital can invest and labor be employed. But neither must take advantage of the other class or of the public. I must be the representative of the public and if I fully represent the public I cannot misrepresent capital or labor. There surely must be found a better way than lockouts or strikes. These are always hurtful. The government may be required to step in to protect the public at large. Labor has a right to strike I wouldn't vote to take it away, but it must be kept in mind that the government must also look to the rights of the public that individuals might injure. I am certain that coal must be mined and railroads must be run and if they can't agree the government is bigger than any individual party in the dispute and must step in to protect the interests of the public. We must take care of the public interests and if the government can't do it, we must confess the government a failure—and we won't make that confession. The present administration is thoughtfully concerned about these problems, but they take time."

Senator Henry R. Endley, of Mansfield, who is manager of Fess's campaign had charge of the meeting, and Mrs. John McKee, Springfield, who is lining up the women voters in Ohio for the Senatorial candidate, was among the first speakers. She said Dr. Fess is already Senator so far as the women of Ohio are concerned. C. H. McIntyre, manager of Harvey C. Smith's campaign for the gubernatorial nomination was the only representative of a candidate for governor present. He spoke briefly.

Candidates for Congress in the Seventh District were allowed three minutes each by the chairman before Dr. Fess's address, after Congressman Roy Fitzgerald of Dayton had opened the meeting with a glowing tribute to Congressman Fess. The three men in the Congressional race also paid tribute to the Senatorial candidate, C. A. Magee, Blanchester, expressed himself as an advocate of the child labor law, and as bone dry and attacked people who are hiding their property from taxation.

Charles Brand, of Urbana, said "It takes courage to even consider taking Fess' place in national legislation. I think other candidates will bear me out when I say Dr. Fess's place is not going to be taken. Newton H. Fairbanks, Springfield, said that "the best that can be said of Dr. Fess in seeking the position of Senator is that by his long years of faithful service to his country in Congress, he has earned that position."

Telegrams of regret and congratulations were read by Senator Endley having been received from Robert H. Day and William Chatfield, Jr., Cincinnati and R. R. Ruhl, Greeley Springs candidates for Lieut. Governor. Two candidates seeking this nomination were present. One was Judge Huston T. Robbins, Chillicothe, who paid a glowing tribute to Fess. The other was Prof. E. A. Harper of Ada, who said "I am glad to be with the man who is going to put Alfie Pomerene in cold storage." Continuing he said, "I am for the minimum wage for women and everything else that women want."

C. A. Willson, of London, who aspires to be state treasurer, spoke briefly. M. A. Broadstone and W. B. Eryson, opponents for the nomination for Greene County representative, spoke briefly as did W. S. McGinnis, Washington D. C., sergeant at arms of the House of Representatives and a warm personal friend of Dr. Fess. Senator Endley predicted in introducing Dr. Fess that his candidate will win in the primary with thousands to spare and will win in November by at least 100,000 majority.

Following the address of Dr. Fess the meeting broke up, but many went to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fess, where the Congressman and his wife received a number of friends on the lawn, assisted by Mrs. C. C. Stearns, of Batavia, wife of Congressman Stearns, of the Sixth District and others including a number of Yellow Springs young women who served punch to the visitors.

Dr. Fess' stay at home ended Wednesday. Thursday he is scheduled to speak at Akron and Alliance winding up with an address at Cleveland at eight o'clock Thursday night.

WILL BE YOUNGEST STUDENT AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

J. Walter Kahoe, aged 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kahoe, of Yellow Springs, will probably be the youngest student at Harvard University the approaching term.

The youth, who was honor pupil of the 1922 graduating class of Yellow Springs high school, has passed the entrance examination for Harvard and will commence his work in the fall.

The family formerly lived in Xenia and Walter attended St. Brigida's parochial school.

GOVERNMENT MUST STEP IN IF LABOR CAN'T AGREE SAYS FESS IN ADDRESS AT REPUBLICAN RALLY AT YELLOW SPRINGS

"I am certain that coal must be mined and railroads must be run, and if they can't agree the government is bigger than individual party in the dispute and must step in to protect the interests of the public."

So said Dr. S. D. Fess, Congressman from Yellow Springs, and aspirant for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator at the preliminary Republican rally arranged by the "Fess for Senator Club" and staged beneath the shade trees on the Antioch College campus Wednesday afternoon.

While other candidates for prominent offices were introduced and spoke briefly, Congressman Fess addressed was principal speech of the afternoon. The Congressman reviewed his political career, from the time he was defeated for Congressional election in another district, back in 1900 until his election in this district and his succeeding ten years in the Lower House. Just as certainly as you are facing me and I am speaking to you, I am going to the Senate of the United States," was the prediction of Dr. Fess in the opening of his address.

Some time was devoted by Dr. Fess to explain his position on the "bloc" question, in which he said he had been misinterpreted through a quotation of his regarding the "agrultural bloc." That he is not opposed to the "bloc" system was the statement of the Congressman. "I cannot stand for any particular interest alone—I stand for the interest of the public," was the way he explained his position. "Group control for any cause is not safe legislation—the only safe legislation is when you consider the public."

The war debts will be a heavy burden on the public for years to come said Dr. Fess. "This is the only government," he said, "on the face of the earth that has reduced its public debts since the world war closed."

Two countries in Europe, Britain and Denmark, he said, have balanced their debts, and all others have increased instead of being reduced. The United States has reduced its war debt two and one-eighth billions of dollars, he explained. The speaker also paid a tribute to Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department. "When Mellon took charge of the Treasury," the biggest problem he had to face was a floating debt of three million dollars," he said. "This was money borrowed from the banks for six months at a time, and when the six months were up, other money was borrowed to take care of it. As a result banking resources were tied up. I asked for a special resolution providing taxes to pay this debt, but it did not pass. Mellon then changed his entire plan of financing the debt, and issued one year, two year and three year certificates to take care of it. As a result he saved the government 450 millions in interest, money was made freer and business began to pick up."

"The problems that came to the Harding administration by the war were unlike anything ever met by any other administration. But the Harding administration goes straight to the point with no ambiguity and leaving no doubt," Charles E. Hughes, he said, is the greatest Secretary of State America ever had."

"The biggest problem before the civilized world today outside of foreign relations, is how we are going to adjust the disputes between capital and labor. Capital must be permitted to invest at a reasonable profit, but while capital is considering its profit, it must not take advantage of any class or of the public. If it does, the government must step in as it does through the Sherman law and other acts. Labor must be given the freest opportunity to be employed steadily at good wages to maintain our standards of civilization. The public man or Congressman in the Legislature must consider the rights of capital to reasonable profit and also the rights of labor to employment at reasonable wages to maintain civilization.

"Without capital labor can't be employed and without labor capital can't invest. Our chief concern is how capital can invest and labor be employed. But neither must take advantage of the other class or of the public. I must be the representative of the public and if I fully represent the public I cannot misrepresent capital or labor. There surely must be found a better way than lockouts or strikes. These are always hurtful. The government may be required to step in to protect the public at large. Labor has a right to strike I wouldn't vote to take it away, but it must be kept in mind that the government must also look to the rights of the public that individuals might injure. I am certain that coal must be mined and railroads must be run and if they can't agree the government is bigger than any individual party in the dispute and must step in to protect the interests of the public. We must take care of the public interests and if the government can't do it, we must confess the government a failure—and we won't make that confession. The present administration is thoughtfully concerned about these problems, but they take time."

Senator Henry R. Endley, of Mansfield, who is manager of Fess's campaign had charge of the meeting, and Mrs. John McKee, Springfield, who is lining up the women voters in Ohio for the Senatorial candidate, was among the first speakers. She said Dr. Fess is already Senator so far as the women of Ohio are concerned. C. H. McIntyre, manager of Harvey C. Smith's campaign for the gubernatorial nomination was the only representative of a candidate for governor present. He spoke briefly.

Candidates for Congress in the Seventh District were allowed three minutes each by the chairman before Dr. Fess's address, after Congressman Roy Fitzgerald of Dayton had opened the meeting with a glowing tribute to Congressman Fess. The three men in the Congressional race also paid tribute to the Senatorial candidate. C. A. Magee, Blanchester, expressed himself as an advocate of child labor law, and as bone dry and attacked people who are hiding their property from taxation.

Charles Brand, of Urbana, said "It takes courage to even consider taking Fess' place in national legislation. I think other candidates will bear me out when I say Dr. Fess' place is not going to be taken. Newton H. Fairbanks, Springfield, said that "the best that can be said of Dr. Fess in seeking the position of Senator is that by his long years of faithful service to his country in Congress, he has earned that position."

Telegrams of regret and congratulations were read by Senator Endley having been received from Robert H. Day and William Chatfield, Jr., Cincinnati and R. R. Ruhl, Greer Springs candidates for Lieut. Governor. Two candidates seeking this nomination were present. One was Judge Huston T. Robbins, Chillicothe, who paid a glowing tribute to Fess. The other was Prof. E. A. Harper of Ada, who said "I am glad to be with the man who is going to put Attoe Pomerene in cold storage." Continuing he said, "I am for the minimum wage for women and everything else that women want."

C. A. Wilson, of London, who aspires to be state treasurer spoke briefly. M. A. Broadstone and W. B. Bryson, opponents for the nomination for Greene County representative, spoke briefly as did W. S. McGinnis, Washington D. C., sergeant at arms of the House of Representatives and a warm personal friend of Dr. Fess. Senator Endley predicted in introducing Dr. Fess that his candidate will win in the primary with thousands to spare and will win in November by at least 100,000 majority.

Following the address of Dr. Fess the meeting broke up, but many went to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fess, where the Congressman and his wife received a number of friends on the lawn, assisted by Mrs. C. C. Stearns, of Batavia, wife of Congressman Stearns of the Sixth District and others including a number of Yellow Springs young women who served punch to the visitors.

Dr. Fess' stay at home ended Wednesday. Thursday he is scheduled to speak at Akron and Alliance winding up with an address at Cleveland at eight o'clock Thursday night.

WILL BE YOUNGEST STUDENT AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

J. Walter Kahoe, aged 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kahoe, of Yellow Springs, will probably be the youngest student at Harvard University the approaching term.

The youth, who was honor pupil of the 1922 graduating class of Yellow Springs high school, has passed the entrance examination for Harvard and will commence his work in the fall.

The family formerly lived in Xenia and Walter attended St. Bridget's parochial school.

Ten LITTLE COAL NOW AVAILABLE HERE FOR DOMESTIC USE

Very little coal was available for domestic use in Xenia Wednesday. Only one of four leading coal dealers interviewed Wednesday afternoon said that he had any considerable amount of coal on hand, and was optimistic over the situation. J. J. Stout of The Walker Coal Company said that three car loads of coal were delivered to him this week and that he will continue getting two or three cars a week providing the railroads can deliver it. He is optimistic over the situation, and says that he sees no reason for the people getting scared at present, as little coal for domestic use will be needed here for two months at least. He said that he does not believe the government priority rule sending coal to the northwest and allowing it to industries need seriously affect the local domestic consumers.

The Stiles Company said that every bit of coal in its yard now is sold and that it is not guaranteeing delivery of any orders, although some are being received with that understanding. This company quoted two of the largest companies in West Virginia, of which it is a customer to the effect that deliveries will be made as soon as the railroads take care of their production. Both companies said that their mines are in first class condition and that hundreds of loaded cars of coal are standing on their premises. They were pessimistic regarding early settlement of the railroad situation. A representative of The Xenia Coal Company said that his firm would have no coal in its yards after next Tuesday, and no prices or deliveries are being guaranteed, because of the inability of the railroads to deliver orders.

The same story was told by The Ledbetter Coal Company. Mr. Ledbetter said that he has very little coal now, and is unable to guarantee any delivery or price of coal for future delivery.

All the local companies have orders placed but have absolutely no assurance of delivery by the railroads. For the most part the local manufacturing concerns have enough coal for their immediate needs, and to last several weeks. Several of the industries run in whole or in part on power furnished by The Dayton Power and Light Company, which is said to have ample fuel for its needs.

The Hooven and Allison Company has enough reserve stock to last two months an official of the concern said Thursday. The company gets its coal from West Virginia and Kentucky chiefly and uses also some Ohio coal.

The R. A. Kelly Company has plenty of coal to last for some time. This firm runs its plants on power furnished by The Dayton Power and Light Company, and does not use a great amount of coal at the plant. It keeps a supply for furnishing its employees with coal at cost.

The Xenia Foundry and Machine Company uses power of The Dayton Power and Light Company chiefly. It uses coke at its plant, and its present supply of that material will only run a few days, a representative of the firm said, but a car shipped to the company has been on the road for some time, and is expected to arrive soon.

The Hagar Board and Paper Company can operate its mills at Cedarville on power furnished by the Dayton Power and Light Company, in case its coal supply fails. Richard Gowdy, office manager for the firm says that there is a supply of coal sufficient to last about three weeks at the factory. The plant was closed Thursday morning to permit the installation of a new engine, and will not be in condition for running until about the last of next week. Mr. Gowdy says that the chief difficulty of his firm now is to secure cars in which to ship its finished product.

CHARGE WOMAN POISONED BUSHES

Urbana, July 27.—Two small children in Carysville are said to be ill at their homes there as the result of eating blackberries on which paris green had been sprinkled according to complaints lodged with Prosecuting Attorney George Waite by Mrs. Jennie Gillispie and a Mrs. Cordell, Monday morning.

According to the story told the prosecutor by the two women the poison was sprinkled on the blackberry bushes by a Bell Bunker and was done as the result of a dispute about the ownership of berries that grew on a clump of bushes growing in the alley by her home.

They alleged that children passing through the alley ate the berries as they ripened. To this the Bunker woman objected, claiming they belonged to her. The children and their parents are said to have declared the berries belonged to anyone as they grew in a public alley.

Saturday, it is alleged, the Bunker woman was seen sprinkling paris green on these bushes. Some time later children ate of them and were taken ill soon after.

Mrs. Gillispie is said to be the mother of one of the children.

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

CANNING PEACHES AND PLUMS

Peaches and plums are so delicious on the home table in winter time, that few housekeepers feel that they can afford to neglect canning these two fruits. The following sirup is right for both of them:

Put into your preserving kettle five pounds and eight ounces of granulated sugar and add to it one gallon of cold water; bring to a boil, then let continue to boil until the sugar is dissolved. Strain at once, for use.

To Can Peaches: Sort the fruit, selecting firm, sound, uniform peaches for canning and putting aside the soft or broken ones for jam. (A few very large peaches are often canned whole in a heavy sirup and are called "elba peaches," but I assume that the average housekeeper would rather put up the ordinary variety, for which I am giving directions.)

"Blanching" is the first step after selecting the peaches. This removes the skins and consists of lowering the fruit in wire basket, or in a cheese-cloth bag, into boiling water until the skins slip easily (about one minute—possibly two minutes), then "cold dip" the fruit by plunging it at once into cold water for a few seconds, drain, and rub off the skins. Cut the peaches in half, remove stones, and immerse the fruit at once in a hot sirup made by the above given recipe. The peach halves should stand in this cooling sirup until thoroughly cold.

Then pack the fruit in quart jars which have been sterilized (that is, jars which have been boiled, empty, with their glass covers beside them, in a pan of clear water for ten minutes), and pour more of the same, strained sirup over them. Slip a "paddle" down the inside of the jar gently (that is, a bamboo or smooth, slender stick of wood), to remove air-bubbles, remove the paddle, and put on new rubbers which you have dipped quickly in and out of boiling water. Adjust glass jar-covers, put top wire up over them but do not press down side wire, and place the jars on a wooden rack in your wash-bosket in very hot water that comes not quite to the top of the jars. Begin counting time after water begins to boil. "Process" the jars for 20 minutes, in this way ("process" means simply letting the water boil around the jars.) Remove jars from water, completely seal, cool, test and store.

To Can Plums: The green-gage, yellow-egg and Lombard are the varieties of plum used most for canning. Only sound, uniform fruit should be chosen. Stem, wash, and prick the skin of each plum with a needle (this prevents bursting in the jar), and pack them as firmly as possible, without crushing, in quart-size, sterilized glass jars. Cover with a sirup made by above given recipe, adjust rubbers, glass tops, put wire up, and process in your wash-bosket canner for 15 minutes, to completely seal. Cool, then test for leaks as follows: Press up side wire, remove top wire from over top, and pick up the entire jar by the glass cover alone; if the cover does not come off, the jar is completely sealed. If it should come off, then you must put the jar back into boiling water for four or five minutes (just as you did it before), and when completely sealed and cold, try the test again. Repeat till successful.

Tomorrow—Suggestions for a "Stork Shower."

BETTING IS STARTED

Cleveland, July 27.—Betting on the Republican gubernatorial nomination started here today, when odds of 2 to 1 were offered with a local betting commissioner that Carmel A. Thompson would win the nomination. $100 to $500 being offered. The name of the man willing to risk his coin was not announced.

PESKY BED BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two-thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year?

To rid the pesky bedbug, you readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones.

P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies that this is the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants is to use the new discovery Pesky Devile Quiescent "P. D. Q."

A 35c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants and at the same time destroy their eggs.

Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Free a patent spout in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get places and save the juice.

P. D. Q. is not an insect powder, no muss or dust, does not rot or burn the bedding.

P. D. Q. for family use 35c. Hospital size $2.50 makes five gallons. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form.

Genuine P. D. Q. is never peddled.

A Stenographer's Romance

BY JANE PHLEPS

NELLIE IS ENTHUSIASTIC Chapter 28

"Oh, Cora! It's just wonderful!" she exclaimed as soon as she saw her. "He was so nice—but no foolishness, nothing but business!"

"Wait until we get inside, dear. Everyone is looking at us," Cora counseled. "There now," as they found a table by themselves, "tell me all about it."

There wasn't much to tell, yet Nellie made quite a graphic tale of it. He told me to eat a good lunch, who you were and I told him you had told me to do. Then he asked who you were and I told him. Cora laughed when Nellie said she had told Mr. Fallon she couldn't help being young, then her face grew serious.

"Don't think I am scolding, Nellie, but don't joke too much during business hours. It might work against you."

"He smiled at me, said to be thankful I was young and healthy. But I'll remember." Then: "He did not say a word about pay, Cora."

"He probably didn't think it necessary. Miss McBride acts as his agent in the matter and she told you."

"I guess that's it! Nellie sighed happily, then devoted herself exclusively to lunch. She and Cora planned a short walk before they returned to work."

"We'll do this every pleasant day," Cora said as they talked of how nice it was to be so near each other. "I always get back five minutes before my time is up. It is better than taking chances on being late."

"I'll do that too! Oh, Cora, just pray I suit them!" Nellie said fervently as they parted.

The afternoon passed quickly. Mr. Fallon kept her very busy, and when it came time to go she was very tired. The excitement, the anxiety to please, had kept her at a nervous pitch all day. But just as she closed his desk her chief said:

"You have done remarkably well for one unaccustomed to my work. Miss McBride seldom makes a mistake."

Nellie forgot she was tired, forgot everything but his praise. That it included Miss McBride—perhaps was meant more for her—made Nellie none the less grateful. She looked so happy when she told the girls that Gladys said:

"Don't let yourself get too enthusiastic, Nellie. The blow would be all the harder to bear if you found you didn't suit. The first day's work is usually light."

"There wasn't anything light in the way he kept me hustling, I can tell you! I was so tired before he said I had done well I didn't know how I was going to get home. But now I'm not tired a bit. Oh, isn't it wonderful! And how glad I am I made Mr. Robinson sign that reference. Mr. Fallon said Miss McBride told him my reference was all that could be desired."

"It was certainly clever in you," Gladys laughed.

"And it was true! I wanted to blow my own horn, but I tried to say nothing that wasn't absolutely true."

"Well, now let's get supper. Cora is going out with William. He couldn't come Saturday night because of his mother."

"Say, Gladys, whatever shall we do if Cora marries him?"

"I don't think you need to worry. He's poor and has a family to take care of. I wish she might marry him—he's an awfully nice fellow, and Cora deserves a home. She's just the sort to need one. But she has her mother to look after too. I guess their's no chance of their marrying." Then: "Isn't it queer that almost every girl I know helps support some one? The papers talk about our taking the places men should have because they have families to care for, I believe just as many girls and women help support a family as men. We don't talk about it and they do."

"What do the men want us to do—starve?" Nellie asked.

"No, I don't think they want that. But they seem to think many of us could live at home without work, or if necessary, go as house-servants or seamstresses; the only two occupations men have not come to think belong to them. Those and school-teaching, and so few are fitted for teaching."

"I guess we have as much right to live as the men!" Nellie said indignantly. "And I think girls do their work just as well."

"Some do—Gladys replied cryptically, then called: "Dinner's ready, Cora! Come on or you'll keep William waiting."

CHARGE WOMAN POISONED BUSHES

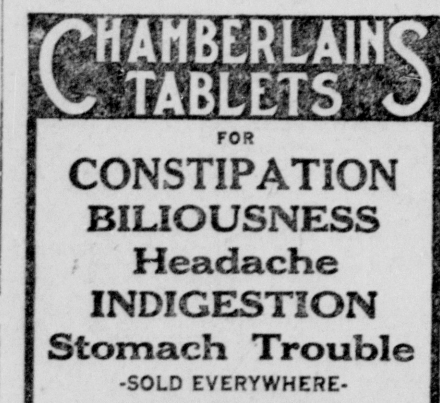

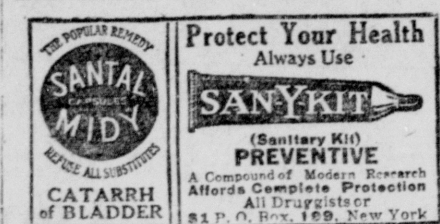

Urbana, July 27.—Two small children in Carysville are said to be ill at their homes there as the result of eating blackberries on which paris green had been sprinkled according to complaints lodged with Prosecuting Attorney George Waite by Mrs. Jennie Gillispie and a Mrs. Cordell, Monday morning.

According to the story told the prosecutor by the two women the poison was sprinkled on the blackberry bushes by a Bell Bunker and was done as the result of a dispute about the ownership of berries that grew on a clump of bushes growing in the alley by her home.

They alleged that children passing through the alley ate the berries as they ripened. To this the Bunker woman objected, claiming they belonged to her. The children and their parents are said to have declared the berries belonged to anyone as they grew in a public alley.

Saturday, it is alleged, the Bunker woman was seen sprinkling paris green on these bushes. Some time later children ate of them and were taken ill soon after.

Mrs. Gillispie is said to be the mother of one of the children.

CANNING PEACHES AND PLUMS

Peaches and plums are so delicious on the home table in winter time, that few housekeepers feel that they can afford to neglect canning these two fruits. The following sirup is right for both of them:

Put into your preserving kettle five pounds and eight ounces of granulated sugar and add to it one gallon of cold water; bring to a boil, then let continue to boil until the sugar is dissolved. Strain at once, for use.

To Can Peaches: Sort the fruit, selecting firm, sound, uniform peaches for canning and putting aside the soft or broken ones for jam. A few very large peaches are often canned whole in a heavy sirup and are called "cuba peaches," but I assume that the average housekeeper would rather put up the ordinary variety, for which I am giving directions.

"Blanching" is the first step after selecting the peaches. This removes the skins and consists of lowering the fruit in wire basket, or in a cheese-cloth bag, into boiling water until the skins slip easily (about one minute—possibly two minutes), then "cold dip" the fruit by plunging it at once into cold water for a few seconds, drain, and rub off the skins. Cut the peaches in half, remove stones, and immerse the fruit at once in a hot sirup made by the above given recipe. The peach halves should stand in this cooling sirup until thoroughly cold. Then pack the fruit in quart jars which have been sterilized (that is, jars which have been boiled, empty, with their glass covers beside them, in a pan of clear water for ten minutes) and pour more of the same, strained sirup over them. Slip a "paddle" (that is, a bamboo or smooth, slender stick of wood), to remove air-bubbles, remove the paddle, and put on new rubbers which you have dipped quickly in and out of boiling water. Adjust glass jar-covers, put top wire up over them but do not press down side wire, and place the jars on a wooden rack in your wash-boller in very hot water that comes not quite to the top of the jars. Begin counting time after water begins to boil. "Process" the jars for 20 minutes, in this way ("processing" means simply letting the water boil around the jars.) Remove jars from water, completely seal, cool, test and store.

To Can Plums: The green-gage, yellow-egg and Lombard are the varieties of plum used most for canning. Only sound, uniform fruit should be chosen. Stem, wash, and prick the skin of each plum with a needle (this prevents bursting in the jar,) and pack them as firmly as possible, without crushing, in quart-size, sterilized glass jars. Cover with a sirup made by abovegiven recipe, adjust rubbers, glass tops, put wire up, and process in your wash-boller canner for 15 minutes, to completely seal. Cool, then test for leaks as follows: Press up side wire, remove top wire from over top, and pick up the entire jar by the glass cover alone; if the cover does not come off, the jar is completely sealed. If it should come off, then you must put the jar back into boiling water for four or five minutes (just as you did it before), and when completely sealed and cold, try the test again. Repeat till successful.

Tomorrow—Suggestions for a "Stork Shower."

PESKY BED BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two-thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year?

To rid the pesky bedbug, you readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones. P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies that this is the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants is to use the new discovery Pesky Devil Quicker "P. D. Q." A 50c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and cotes and at the same time destroy their eggs. Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Free a patent spot in every package to get the pesky devil in the hard-to-get-at places and save the juice. P. D. Q. is not an insect powder, no muss or dust, does not rot or burn the bedding. P. D. Q. for family use. Hospital size $2.50 makes five gallons. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form. Genuine P. D. Q. is never peddled.

NELLIE IS ENTHUSIASTIC Chapter 28

"Oh, Cora! It's just wonderful!" she exclaimed as soon as she saw her. "He was so nice—but no foolishness, nothing but business!"

"Wait until we get inside, dear. Everyone is looking at us," Cora counseled. "There now," as they found a table by themselves, "tell me all about it."

There wasn't much to tell, yet Nellie made quite a graphic tale of it. He told me to eat a good lunch who you were and I told him you had told me to do. Then he asked who you were and I told him.

Cora laughed when Nellie said she had told Mr. Fallon she couldn't help being young, then her face grew serious.

"Don't think I am scolding, Nellie, but don't joke too much during business hours. It might work against you."

"He smiled at me, said to be thankful I was young and healthy. But I'll remember." Then: "He did not say a word about pay, Cora."

"He probably didn't think it necessary. Miss McBride acts as his agent in the matter and she told you."

"I guess that's it! Nellie sighed happily, then devoted herself exclusively to lunch. She and Cora planned a short walk before they returned to work.

"We'll do this every pleasant day," Cora said as they talked of how nice it was to be so near each other. "I always get back five minutes before my time is up. It is better than taking chances on being late."

"I'll do that, too! Oh, Cora, just pray I suit them!" Nellie said fervently as they parted.

The afternoon passed quickly. Mr. Fallon kept her very busy, and when it came time to go she was very tired. The excitement, the anxiety to please, had kept her at a nervous pitch all day. But just as he closed his desk her chief said:

"You have done remarkably well for one unaccustomed to my work. Miss McBride seldom makes a mistake."

Nellie forgot she was tired, forgot everything but his praise. That it included Miss McBride—perhaps was meant more for her—made Nellie none the less grateful. She looked so happy when she told the girls that Gladys said:

"Don't let yourself get too enthusiastic, Nellie. The blow would be all the harder to bear if you found you didn't suit. The first day's work is usually light."

"There wasn't anything light in the way he kept me hustling, I can tell you! I was so tired before he said I had done well I didn't know how I was going to get home. But now I'm not tired a bit. Oh, isn't it wonderful! And how glad I am I made Mr. Robinson sign that reference. Mr. Fallon said Miss McBride told him my reference was all that could be desired."

"It was certainly clever in you," Gladys laughed.

"And it was true! I wanted to blow my own horn, but I tried to say nothing that wasn't absolutely true."

"Well, now let's get supper. Cora is going out with William. He couldn't come Saturday night because of his mother."

"Say, Gladys, whatever shall we do if Cora marries him?"

"I don't think you need to worry. He's poor and has a family to take care of. I wish she might marry him—he's an awfully nice fellow, and Cora deserves a home. She's just the sort to need one. But she has her mother to look after too. I guess there's no chance of their marrying." Then: "Isn't it queer that almost every girl I know helps support some one? The papers talk about our taking the places men should have because they have families to care for. I believe just as many girls and women help support a family as men. We don't talk about it and they do."

"What do the men want us to do—starve?" Nellie asked. "No, I don't think they want that. But they seem to think many of us could live at home without work, or if necessary, go as house-servants or seamstresses; the only two occupations men have not come to think belong to them. Those and school-teaching, and so few are fitted for teaching."

"I guess we have as much right to live as the men!" Nellie said indignantly. "And I think girls do their work just as well."

"Some do—" Gladys replied cryptically, then called: "Dinner's ready, Cora! Come on or you'll keep William waiting."
